THOUSANDS DEAD!

TYPHOON HORROR GROWS

Latest Advices from Hongkong Add Horror to Horror in Tidal Wave and Typhoon Devastation.

Special Cable to Boston American.

HONGKONG, Sept. 19.—The horror of the typhoon disaster grows hourly.

It now seems certain that the death list will run up into the thousands.

Millions of dollars worth of property has been destroyed, including scores of vessels in the harbor.

Chaos prevails in what is left of the city. The great tidal wave carried many bodies out to sea, so that the loss of life cannot be estimated with any degree of accuracy.

The Governor-General is bending every energy of the Government to bring order out of panic. The troops are doing splendid service.

Shipping at a Standstill.

At least twelve ships were sunk at their moorings, double that number were driven ashore, and few craft in the harbor escaped some damage.

The number of water craft which were destroyed is past estimate.

The shipping industry is at a complete standstill. Those vessels which escaped serious damage cannnot handle cargo, as practically every lighter in the harbor has been destroyed.

Yesterday's terrible typhoon came suddenly and without warning. Half an hour after the gun signal had been fired the storm was at its height. It lasted two hours.

Most of the damage done was wrought on the Kowloon peninsula. Over 1,000 sampans and junks are missing from Hongkong alone. Wharves were swept away and houses collapsed. The military barracks are in ruins.

The steamships Moutesgle, Fatshan, Hongshun, Wing Chai, Hermnais, Cestiano, Tak Hing, Emma Loyken, San Rosario, Slava, Pakhoug, Petrarch, Chum Lee, Senta, Sumon, Chang Sha, Signal and Chukai Maru are ashore. The American ship S. P. Hitchcock was also driven ashore, as were many of the launches that run about the harbor.

Thousands Perished.

The steamships Kwong Chow, Can Cheung, Canton and Kongmoon were sunk. The steamships Apeurade and Johanse are partly awash. The British reserve sloop Phoenix and a small gunboat, the Bongola, are ashore. The British torpedo boat destroyers Moorhen, Robin and Taku were damaged.

The Sir William Jervos was sunk. The French torpedo boat destroyer Fronde was wrecked and the Francisque is ashore. The guns of the Fronde were saved, but three petty officers and one seaman lost their lives.

A Chinese revenue cutter is ashore and several Indo-China and Manilla liners narrowly escaped disaster.

The harbor is strewn with wreckage thrown up on shore. Hundreds of Chinese boatmen and their families were saved by the bravery of the police and civilians, but several thousand of the Chinese water dwellers must have perished, many within short distances of the shore.

130 in One Launch Drown.

The losses in lives and property among the Chinese were appalling. To-day the police stations in Hongkong are surrounded by Chinese, identifying their dead. The families of the Hongkong boatmen live night and day on the steamers, and thousands of these people are now homeless.

The Chinese take the disaster calmly and show no manifestation of grief.

One launch that was capsized had 130 Chinese on board. They were all drowned.

The river steamboat Farshan drifted into collision with the French mail steamship Polynesian. The entire Chinese crew climbed aboard the French steamship, and left Captain Thomas, who was injured; one officer and the engineers to navigate the Fatshan to Shelter Bay, where she was blown ashore.

The Bishop of Victoria, Dr. J. C. Hoare, was on his way to visit some neighboring islands when the storm broke, and is reported missing. His launch has been found floating bottom upward.

FEW EUROPEANS LOST.

Many valuable steel lighters have been lost. Some of them were buried ashore. Channels will have to be dug to permit some of the vessels ashore to be refloated. The force of the wind and waves were such that some vessels were landed almost high and dry.

The Japanese steamship Sada Maru rescued sixty-six natives and one English pilot as she was approaching Hongkong. The English mail steamships Delhi and Peesa escape damage.

The British cruiser Terrible entered port yesterday afternoon and reported fine weather up the harbor.

Sir Matthew Nathan, governor of Hongkong, and the authorities are doing everything possible to render assistance. Reports of fresh disasters are arriving every hour.

BOSTON & MAINE WINS NOMINATION CONTEST

TRICKERY SUCCEEDS IN NAMING CORPORATION CANDIDATE FOR GOVERNOR.

CONCORD, N. H., Sept. 19.—The Boston & Maine Railroad controlled the Republican State convention yesterday, and after a hard fight nominated Charles M. Floyd of Manchester for Governor, but it is believed all over the State that the result was accomplished by usual monopolistic corporation tactics, and that the stories of buying delegates' credentials for cash tell why the railroad succeeded in naming the nominee, although it had to accept the Winston Churchill platform.

When it was disclosed at the counting of votes on numerous ballots that more votes were cast than there were delegates to the convention, the cry of "fraud" was raised by the honest element.

Although the Churchill men may stand by Floyd at the polls, having voted to make the nomination unanimous, they believe that unscrupulous machine tactics were used to defeat the Cornish author.

Why there should be sixty ballots cast from a county having but fifty is not explained. The extra votes were not for Churchill.

It took ten hours and a half and nine ballots to nominate Floyd. Churchill was pushing on every ballot. It looked as if he would be nominated if the balloting continued long enough.

Churchill a Good Second.

Then the railroad rulers of the State got desperate. They had to do some "fine" political work to nominate Floyd. Churchill was a good second.

The final vote was 408 to 355. Churchill's representative in the convention at once moved to make it unanimous, and after the toughest and most bitter struggle that the party in New Hampshire has known in at least a generation, the warring factions took the centre of the stage at the final curtain, with their arms about one another's necks, everybody joining in the old chorus. "We must have harmony, if we have to fight for it." It had been a great show, well worth the price of admission.

The machine politicians of Southern New Hampshire, fearing defeat with Greenleaf, immediately proposed Floyd of Manchester, who is also one of McLane's counsellors and who has served his terms in the Senate.

While not a man of such wealth as Greenleaf, Floyd is well-to-do. He likes a fast horse and a good dinner, belongs to the Derryfield Club and at home is called a jolly good fellow.

At about that time Rosecrans W. Pillsbury of Londonderry, a shoe manufacturer, who had been an agitator for the "people" in the previous Legislature, launched his own little boom and followed the launching by buying the Manchester Union, the one morning paper in the State, and making it do a flip flop from Democracy to Republicanism.

And Along Came Churchill.

Pillsbury had never got along with Railroad Commissioner Henry M. Putney of Manchester, whom his neighbors call a "boss," and he immediately began a series of attacks on what he called the "political trust" of New Hampshire. By this term he appears to have meant the office holders and lobbyists who do the actual governing for the Boston & Maine Railroad.

Pillsbury's fight was at once said to be another struggle of the cute to get in.

And then along came Winston Churchill, pushed forward on July 16 by the Lincoln Republican Club, telling the State that what ought to be a government of the people, by the people and for the people was really a government of the people by the lobby for the Boston & Maine Railroad. Churchill went on the stump with Daniel C. Remick of Littleton, a lawyer who has long been a thorn in the flesh of the machine, and they began touring the State.

They attacked the free pass system, or the lack of it, asserted that the railroad meddled continually in legislation that is none of its business, declared that it evades its just share of the burdens of taxation and said that contrary to law

COOL WAVE TO GIVE RELIEF AFTER TO-DAY

Weather Bureau Says End of Torrid Spell Is in Sight.

Boston is sweltering to-day under a torrid wave that blew up from the South on Tuesday and pushed the thermometer up by jumps. To-day at 10 a. m. the mercury registered 83 degrees.

Observer Smith is baffled. It was really intended to let Bostonians enjoy a cool September, but now all hopes of this have been blighted.

The presence of the hot wave is only explained at the weather bureau by peculiar atmospheric conditions in the South that butted for the North and spread its warm breath about southern New England and New York. But relief is promised. To-day the cool winds of the North will drive away the heated spell and Bostonians will once more experience seasonable weather. A temperature as high as 90 is predicted, but this, it is said, will be the limit and then the temperature will quickly fall.

The thermometer registered as follows since midnight:

LID ON MAYOR'S PAPER LEGALLY TAKEN OFF

"REPUBLIC" COMPANY INCORPORATED; JOSIAH QUINCY A SHAREHOLDER.

The lid is now legally off from the Republic, Mayor John F. Fitzgerald's weekly paper to the dissemination of news and other things.

Comes out of Augusta, Me., the news of the incorporation of the Republic Publishing Company. There are 30,000 shares at $10 a share. Not the least human interest item in this connection is the fact that Chairman Josiah Quincy of the perplexed Democratic State Committee of this long suffering Commonwealth has an eyelash hold on the journalistic lid to the extent of one $10 share.

Astute students of things corporate are reading admiringly between the lines of the company's charter. The Republic Publishing Company, according to the Augusta records, intends to do thus:

"Publish newspapers or other publications, own and manufacture paper or paper stock, and a large number of allied purposes."

"A large number of allied purposes."

Ordinary Publishers Envious.

Publishers of common or garden dailies, chafing occasionally under various legal restrictions, envy Mayor Fitzgerald the possession of that "allied purposes" clause. It facilitates such varied action, in their mind.

Then the sphere of action itself is still more illimitable, as shown by the following excerpt from the charter:

"With authority to maintain branches in any State, Territory or possession of the United States or its possessions, or in any part of the world."

"The in any part of the world."

Politicians agree that this really takes the lid off the sheet and hurls it into the sub-cellar of the Down and Out Club, behind the ash barrels.

"You Can't Lose It."

You won't be able to lose the Republic hereafter. Hohokus can't escape it. It can legally permeate the purlieus of the Putdunes. It can travel from Xanadu to where rolls the Oregon and no man can say it nay.

The news of this incorporation is all the more interesting on account of Mayor Fitzgerald's recent earnest disclaimer of any responsibility for the famous "intiqdation" editorial in his paper, which some have unkindly alleged was a strong hint for city employes of Martin's Lemasney's ball nuke to vote "right."

It has been said, and there is no argument, that there are shares in the new company for sale to discriminating politicians, contractors and other clients.

Beside Josiah Quincy, other stockholders are Charles H. Weston of Boston, twelve shares; H. L. Cram, A. J. Desmond, H. C. Wilbur and H. P. Sweetser of Portland, and Fred A. Ainsworth, William G. Burns and Leonard M. Calfon of Boston, with one share each. Harry L. Cram is president, Charles H. Weston treasurer and Frederick Hall of Portland clerk. The directors are C. H. Weston, H. L. Cram, A. J. Desmond, H. C. Wilbur and H. P. Sweetser.

WANTS $15,000 FOR WIFE WHOM HE DIVORCED

Decides He Needs Compensation for Her Loss and Sues Doctor He Named at Trial.

ODD FELLOWS HEARD CASE

Special to the Boston American.

WOODSVILLE, N. H., Sept. 19.—E. S. Woodward, a prominent citizen of this town, feels that $15,000 is due him for the loss of the comfort, society and assistance of his wife, Phoebe, from whom he was granted a divorce in 1904, and has brought suit for that amount against Dr. E. P. Dean, whom he named as co-respondent at the trial.

The domestic troubles of the Woodwards have been a sweet morsel for the gossips for several years and public interest went so far at one time that the Odd Fellows held a hearing, employing a stenographer from Boston, who afterward lost his notes. The Business Men's Club took the matter up when the doctor applied for membership and church circles were also greatly exercised.

Mrs. Phoebe Anna Woodward arrived in Lebanon Monday night, but was closely secluded at the home of a former neighbor until yesterday. To a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter she said:

"I am going to tell the truth and I do not care whom it hurts. They have lied me long enough. I would not be here now had I not wished to see my children."

It is said that at the Odd Fellows' hearing she made statements which completely shattered her former ones. When asked about this she said:

"I don't remember what I did say there, but it will be fully explained later. I can see my error now that it is too late, but I shall be wiser in the future. I have suffered for what I have done, but I do not complain. I am earning my living now in nursing in Boston.

"I can never live down the shame that has come upon me. It will follow me to my grave. I care most for my children, who were in no way to blame for what has happened. I am not in league with Mr. Woodward in this matter and protested against his action. I thought my troubles would end with the trial and divorce."

Mrs. Woodward came to Woodsville yesterday and met her former husband in the hotel lobby, but there was no sign of recognition on either side.

"I cannot talk on the matter," said Dr. Dean at Lebanon. "I am going to Woodsville to defend myself against the suit. So it will not be private; it will be public. I have done nothing that I am ashamed of and I want the matter thoroughly trashed out. That is all I have to say." Mr. Woodward, they say, wants a private hearing; but it will be public.

The trial of the case begins to-day. About twenty-five witnesses have been summoned.

PLIGHT OF BRIDEGROOM IN AMAZING WEDDING PICTURED BY HAWTHORNE

PRINCIPALS IN WEDDING; HOUSE WHERE CEREMONY WAS PERFORMED

Miss MacDonald, Bride-Elect, Who Compelled Fiance to Wed Girl He Jilted.

Suitor, Trapped by Fiancee, Forced to Wed Heart-Broken Girl He Deserted.

Then He Is Driven from Marriage Feast by Guests at Unusual Ceremony.

By Julian Hawthorne.

NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—Had the author of the new play, "Hypocrites," waited before writing it until he had consulted Miss Mary Macdonald of Brooklyn he might have produced a much stronger and more original drama, only everyone would have declared it to be impossible in real life. The Macdonald family must be credited with, among other sterling virtues—a radical dramatic instinct which, in the marriage that was celebrated in their house last Saturday, found abundant expression.

Imagine a young scoundrel named Thober (that happens to be his real name) basking rosy-gilled and innocent-eyed, in the house of the girl he expected to make his wife that evening, and finding himself abruptly confronted at the altar—relatives around gritting—smiling with no less a phenomenon than pretty little Viola Glover, whom he had courted, betrayed and callously deserted a few months before.

Married and Dismissed.

There she stood, the charming but appallingly incorrect fiancee of his past and immitigable Macdonalds and other persons were frigidly intimating that the integrity of his oath and honor depended entirely upon his placing on Viola's finger the plain gold ring which he had just bought at Macy's. Not that Viola wanted his company, but for a consonantal purpose.

Appeal to Mary was worse than vain. She had known his guilty secret for many days past, and just indignation had had time to usurp the place of love. The wretched Thober encountered the person utters the words, and three minutes later Thober is by the erect, married and dismissed, while Viola, Mary, the families and the guests sip the wine and munch the wedding cake in self-congratulatory festivities.

Lesson in Real Life.

Let this incident be detached from the rank of romance that are ever flowing through newspaper columns. We have not seen its parallel before, and may not again, but could any other solution of a very common problem be so just, so complete and so brilliant? Common sense and courage, and the dramatic instinct can cut many seemingly irretrievable tangles at one stroke. Let Lord Gordian knots if only persons possessed of these qualifications will step to the front.

MISS MACDONALD WHO MADE SACRIFICE NOW MOURNS HER BROTHER

NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—In a house of sorrow, where the marriage of her dance to another girl will be followed to-day by the funeral of her brother, Miss Mary Macdonald yesterday consented, with some reluctance, to speak further of the amazing story of love and justice in which she figures. She will not admit that she made any sacrifice, but all her friends realize how severe was the blow to her love and pride.

"It was all very simple," she said, "I only did my duty and made it easier for that poor little girl to obtain justice. There is no question of sacrifice on my part. When I discovered that Mr. Thober, the man whom I was to have married, was being sought by the Glovers on account of whose daughter he had promised marriage, my love for him died. It died with a pop and would not have married him under any circumstances. I am only glad that I was able to help Miss Glover."

Miss MacDonald denied that Mrs. Thober, who was Miss Glover, had accused her of arranging the sudden marriage, because Miss MacDonald had deserted to break the engagement and believed that to be the coolest way.

Sounds the Praises of Her Rival.

"Mrs. Thober is a dear, sweet little girl, and I am positive she made no such statement. We are friends and I have heard from her recently. She does not know where her husband went after the ceremony or our house and does not want to know. I herself do not think that he had committed suicide, but I hardly think he was the sort of man to do that."

Hardly had the terrible strain to which she had been subjected, while she smilingly acted as bridesmaid in the dress which had been made for her wedding guests, and later as hostess endeavored to cheer the forlorn little bride and relieve the gloom of the wedding guests, been lifted by the departure of the pastor and the witnesses of the marriage when Miss MacDonald's mother stood that her brother had died in Squirtes Depot in the house at No. 2240 Fifty-third street, Brooklyn, where Miss Macdonald lives with her widowed mother, the body awaits burial to-day.

Trap Laid for Suitor.

"In the main the story of this marriage has been correctly told," Miss MacDonald continued, when pressed for details.

She had known Thober almost a year. He was frank and engaging in manners, and she had learned to love him. Because she was a Catholic and he a Protestant her family had at first objected to their marriage. Later they and given consent. Thober had taken her to see his mother. Sunday evening had been set for the wedding. Every preparation had been made. Entirely by accident Miss MacDonald had discovered that the man she was to marry had abandoned a girl in Newark. She investigated and found the story true. Miss Glover's plight—she was but seventeen years of age—had attracted her sympathy. She consulted her brother-in-law, J. J. Griffin, and the trap was laid for Thober.

MISSIONARIES FOR ORIENT OFF ON DEVONIAN

Baptist Union Members at Wharf to Bid Departing Ones Godspeed.

Twenty Baptist missionaries bound for different points in the Orient sailed on the Leyland line steamship Devonian from East Boston to-day. They were bidden godspeed by a crowd of about 500 members of the American Baptist Missionary Union, who sang "America" and "Auld Lang Syne" to the music of a band, and then offered a prayer for the weal and safety of the departing ones. The prayer and singing were led by the Rev. Thomas S. Barbour, D. D. The party was made up of the following:

Rev. H. C. Leach and wife, Rev. L. W. Spring and wife, Miss Amelia L. Priest, Miss Victoria Mitchell, Rev. J. E. Cummings, D. D., wife and two children, Mrs. J. H. Randall, who go to Burmah; Rev. J. B. Lonsdale and wife and Miss Linnie Holbrook, for Assam; Miss Anna Dejenning, M. D., Miss Melissa M. Morrow, Miss Minnie Evans, Mrs. W. R. Mosier, for India; E. R. McIntyre, to the Philippine islands.

DYNAMITE A PERIL IN HOTEL FIRE IN MAINE

Guests Rush to Safety From Blaze in Early Morning Hours.

AUGUSTA, Me., Sept. 19.—A dangerous fire started shortly after 2 a. m. to-day in the rear of the Kennebec Hotel, at Willow and Cooper streets. The fire spread rapidly to two adjoining buildings before the firemen arrived in response to an alarm from box No. 15.

There were a number of guests in the hotel besides the proprietor and employes. They were awakened by the cries and hastily dressing made their escape from the building in safety.

The Hotel Kennebec is owned by Charles Sturgis and one of the adjoining buildings, which caught is also his property. In the smaller building, which is used as a fruit store, there were found on the floor two sticks of dynamite. The firemen hustled the explosives to a less dangerous place.

Further investigation were made, thinking there might be more hides in other parts of the store, but none was found.

The firemen and police are at a loss to understand how the dynamite got there, and are still more mystified concerning the origin of the fire.

The fire is thought to have been the work of firebugs, but there is absolutely no other tool which to trace the miscreants.

The buildings were all wooden frame affairs and partly insured. The loss is estimated at between $6,000 and $7,000.

The central location of the fired buildings made it decidedly dangerous and only the valiant work of the firemen prevented a more serious conflagration.

2 FATALLY HURT IN AUTO AT VANDERBILT TRIALS

GEORGE ROBERTSON AND HIS MECHANICIAN THROWN WHEN CAR HIT POLE.

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—George Robertson and his mechanician, Arthur Warren, were probably fatally hurt to-day, while driving Mr. Robertson's ninety-horsepower American car in a burst of speed on a practice spin for the elimination trials for the Vanderbilt cup race over the Mineola, L. I., course.

Robertson was at the wheel as the machine whirled along on the stretch just ahead of what is known as the boulvain turn, near Bull's Head. Suddenly, at the turn, the sharpest on the course, the big car swerved side, struck a telegraph pole, upset and flung both Robertson and Warren to the road with terrific force.

Just behind Robertson was Elliott F. Shepard in his 150-horsepower French Hotchkiss machine. Robertson had raised such a cloud of dust that Shepard could not see what was ahead of him.

Fortunately for him, he slowed up to take the dangerous hairpin turn, and thus saved his life.

FIREMEN SAVE 12 FAMILIES

NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—Twelve families had a narrow escape from death early to-day in a fire in a tenement house in Amsterdam avenue. Gas from melted pipes filled the house, adding to the danger from flame and smoke.

Escape by the stairs was cut off before the fire was discovered. The occupants were taken from the fire escapes by firemen. When it was supposed that everyone had been removed a shout was raised, "Where are the Shannons?"

They occupied the third floor, rear, and none had been accounted for. Firemen fought their way to the flat and found the family of seven huddled near a window with wet handkerchiefs across their faces. They were carried to safety.

The fire caused a loss of $100,000.

'HOODOO' CHAIR GOES BEGGING

Boston University's "hoodoo chair" on colonial expansion is "going" at last, Professor Bailey's Bigelow's successor, Henry E. Rowe, Ph. D., having sent in his resignation, within two days of the opening of the college. The faculty is in a quandary, and can apparently find nobody who wishes to take a chance in the seat that has proved too warm for Mr. Bigelow and Mr. Rowe. Many students who took the course last year are advising others to give it a wide berth.

Poultney Bigelow was the originator of the courses, but it gradually assumed too lurid a coloring for the faculty and he was forced to resign in order to avoid unpleasantness with the authorities.

The "Machine" Laughed.

The machine laughed at and ridiculed both Pillsbury and Churchill. It was said that one of these might get seventy-five votes and the other fifty, but nobody would undertake to say which would be which. Pillsbury during the months he utilized trust in his newspaper and Rumford and Churchill kept their secret well. Then came Election & Maine domination at the Capitol.

Yesterday the Lincoln Republican Club reassembled. Laughed at, ridiculed and frost-bitten two months ago, saw its platform made the platform of the Republican party in New Hampshire.

"I'm" said former Senator William E. Chandler last night, "glad the platform is and they"—meaning the "machine crowd"—"got the nomination."

The Manchester boys, carried away by their enthusiasm and forgetting all about the "Old Man," declared that Churchill in 1908 or later. And Daniel C. Remich of Portsmouth, said to the BOSTON AMERICAN reporter:

"But Got the Platform."

Yesterday the Lincoln Republican Club reassembled, laughed at, ridiculed and frost-bitten two months ago, saw its platform made the platform of the Republican party in New Hampshire.

SEEKS DEBATE WITH 2 RIVALS

Candidate Johnson of Melrose, who is out for the Republican congressional nomination in the Seventh District, wants to talk it over with Congressman E. W. Roberts of Chelsea.

Candidate Johnson wants to have Congressman Roberts all to himself, for he objects to the suggestion that Candidate Aldrich Choulpis made no effort to escape when he was taken into custody by his fellow-workers in the Hood Rubber Works, where the assault occurred. It is said that Sarkis, who is thirty years of age, was recently released from an insane asylum. No words were heard to pass before the blow was struck.

Sarkis was locked up for assault with a dangerous weapon. The father, who is sixty years of age, is on the dangerous list at the Cambridge Hospital. His skull is fractured.

RAPS FATHER WITH IRON BAR

WATERTOWN, Sept. 19.—After striking his father over the head with an iron, felling him to the floor and inflicting wounds from which the old man probably will die, Sarkis Choulpis made no effort to escape when he was taken into custody by his fellow-workers in the Hood Rubber Works, where the assault occurred. It is said that Sarkis, who is thirty years of age, was recently released from an insane asylum. No words were heard to pass before the blow was struck.

FROGS PARADE; CROWDS GAZE

MERIDEN, Ct., Sept. 19.—Hundreds of frogs migrating in a body half a mile across the town was a curious sight witnessed by throngs of people leaving the county fair. Columbia street, the route chosen by the batrachians for their pilgrimage, was lined with people watching the "hop" procession.

The frog-hop began about sundown. The dry weather had discouraged them. The little pond which has been their home having vanished.

ACCUSED GIRL SAYS SHE LIKES JAIL LIFE

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19.—Miss Eulalie Puckett, the Agricultural Department clerk accused of negotiating loans on property owned by other people, was arraigned in the municipal court to-day on a charge of $5,500 bail. She says she likes the jail and has been enjoying her stay there the past two weeks.

I have no political machine back of me in the fight I am making for Reciprocity and Tariff Revision. I have a discredited political machine opposing me. The cause I represent is growing stronger every day.

Beer Is Not An Alcoholic Drink

An Eminent Scientist Says It Cannot Properly Be Called Such.

In view of the increasing popularity of beer it is interesting to note what the really eminent authorities think of it. There has been, and still is in certain quarters, a prejudice against beer, but this prejudice, like many prejudices, is based on misinformation. Beer, as it is, as it is frequently called by uninformed people, and as it can be made, is a food drink. It is possible to drink too much beer, just as it is possible to overeat of bread, but the proper use of beer is declared by eminent doctors to be conducive to health.

Dr. E. Struve of Berlin, a well-known scientist, says: "The specific characteristic of beer lies in its extracts. Modern technics in beer brewing have a tendency to reduce the amount of alcohol in beer and to correspondingly increase the proportion of extracts. According to the small amount of alcohol in beer, the same cannot properly be called an alcoholic beverage.

Pabst, for sixty years, has been the leader in all scientific developments in the art of brewing, and resulting Pabst Blue Ribbon Beer is the recognized superior of all beers. Pabst is the extract (food elements) of which Dr. Struve speaks, absolutely pure and clean and low in its percentage of alcohol.

Pabst Blue Ribbon Beer is so rich in food elements because brewed only from Pabst exclusive eight-day malt. This malt is grown from the finest selected barley, and grown slowly, in Nature's own way, thus retaining all the vital food elements of the barley. It gives Pabst Blue Ribbon the highest food value and makes it most nourishing. The very small percentage of alcohol in Pabst Blue Ribbon, only from two and a half per cent, serves to stimulate the digestive activity of the stomach and cause nothing so injurious to the health as Pabst Blue Ribbon, the most healthful beer, the choicest of bottled beers, is the best for the home.

TRAIN LEAPS FROM BRIDGE; MANY KILLED

Eight Known Dead, 20 or 30 Missing and 20 Injured in Oklahoma Wreck.

LOCOMOTIVE DISAPPEARS

GUTHRIE, Okla., Sept. 19.—Eight persons are dead, twenty more or less injured, and as many more missing as the result of the wrecking of a Rock Island passenger train yesterday three miles from Dover, Okla.

The engine, tender, baggage and mail cars, smoking car and day coach of passenger train No. 12, north-bound, left the high bridge that spans the Cimarron river and plunged into the stream, which is flanked by treacherous quicksand. The locomotive disappeared almost immediately. The mail and baggage cars escaped from their cars and swam to the shore.

The accident was due to driftwood, which piled against the bridge and carried it out of line. The train was an hour late, and was running at high speed. The engineer did not see the condition of the bridge until he was within a few yards of it. He shouted to his fireman and jumped. He landed on the verge of the river and escaped unhurt. The firemen sustained severe injuries.

When the engine struck the bridge the structure collapsed, precipitating the engine, smoking car and day coach into the water. Two Pullmans remained on the track.

JAMES H. M'MAIN OF WARD 8.

Scenes in life and fate simile of honorable navy discharge of city employe who is said to have been first victim in now famous Lomasney-Fitzgerald Ward 8 war.

Assessor's Berth "Bait," It Is Said, to Get Former Lomasney Man on Dixon's Side.

Mayor John F. Fitzgerald is accused of offering a City Hall office as a bribe to defeat Councilman Daniel J. Kiley of Ward 8, candidate for the Democratic nomination for Senator in the Third District. It was stated by a Ward 8 leader to-day that Mayor Fitzgerald had promised former Councilman Frank J. Horgan of the West End appointment to the office of principal assessor, made vacant by the death of George A. Coulter. The salary is $4,000 a year and the term three years.

Christopher McGrath, leader of the Kiley forces in Ward 7, told the same Ward 8 man that Mayor Fitzgerald had offered to appoint him as successor to Coulter if he would desert Kiley.

Up to within a few hours, Horgan, who is an attorney, was a Kiley supporter. As recently as Sunday last he made a speech in the West End, favoring Kiley and, it is said, scoring Mayor Fitzgerald.

Politicians have been astonished at Horgan's change of front. Now he is supporting former Alderman Edward W. Dixon for the Senate. Dixon is Mayor Fitzgerald's candidate. Invitations over Horgan's name have been issued to Ward 8 voters to attend a Dixon rally in that district to-night.

It is asserted by Kiley men that Horgan has stated that he was offered the office of assessor by the Mayor. He was formerly a Lomasney lieutenant, and as such was nominated and elected to office. He has not always been on good terms with the Ward 8 chieftain.

Mayor Fitzgerald takes great interest in the Third District fight and has made Dixon's cause his own. If Kiley wins, it will be accepted all over Boston as evidence that the Mayor's political following has disintegrated.

Some of the most influential of the Kiley workers have lost their city jobs. This is the fight in which the suspension of James H. or "Dixie" McMain, a civil war veteran, who has a gallant record in both the Union Army and Navy was announced. He was wounded while with General Sheridan at Cedar Creek, and served under both Admirals Farragut and Dewey.

This is the fight in which Kiley asked District Attorney Moran to indict Mayor Fitzgerald on the charge of using his power, as the Republic, to intimidate and coerce Ward 8 men who have city jobs.

LIGHTING COMMITTEE FRIGHTENED

Will Ask for More Time to Consider Municipal Ownership Idea.

TO SCORE EDISON CO.

Although the time limit within which the joint special committee of the City Council appointed to investigate the question of municipal ownership of lighting plants by the city of Boston has to report expires to-morrow, the committee is totally unprepared to make a report. The committee, under the order by which it was appointed in March, should have reported early in September, but asked for and was granted an extension of time until September 20. Now it will ask a further extension of time, a meeting having been called for 4 o'clock this afternoon.

Only Interest in Junket.

For months the committee did nothing, the only interest of a majority of the members being in a proposed junket to western cities. Not until lately, with the Fall primaries close at hand, when the members must answer to their constituents, has the committee realized the seriousness of the proposition it is facing.

The committee as appointed by the Mayor through the presiding officers of the two branches of the City Council was stacked thirteen to two against municipal lighting, and knowing the kind of a report they were expected to make, the members, with few exceptions, have not until now treated the investigation seriously.

Facts and figures showing the manner in which the city is being discriminated against in its street lighting and public buildings lighting contracts in favor of private consumers and neighboring municipalities have been presented to the committee by A. F. Kimball of the Electrical Workers' Union.

Figures Confirmed.

These have been substantiated by the report of the Gas and Electric Light Commissioners and the replies of the Edison company to legislative inquiries, and not even Everett W. Burdett, the lobby salaried counsel of the company, has been able to refute the evidence. So the committee does not dare to face the public with a report stating that the city is obtaining its light at a figure that would make it unprofitable for it to engage in municipal ownership.

The idea of leaving the drawing of the majority report to Burdett, seriously entertained at one time, has been abandoned, and a report scoring the company will be presented, signed by several members, if not by a majority of the committee.

H. F. NORRIS'S DEATH SHOCK TO FRIENDS

The numerous friends and acquaintances of Herbert F. Norris, who was familiarly known about City Hall, Boston, and in newspaper and political circles as "The Judge," will be grieved to learn of the sudden death yesterday afternoon at his home in Beechmont.

Mr. Norris had been ill for several months, but his death was not expected, as he had been ten days ago he circulated among his City Hall friends. At the time of his death he was employed on the BOSTON AMERICAN as a reporter at City Hall. Before he began work on the AMERICAN he was connected with the Associated Press and other newspapers in this city.

He was born in Epping, N. H., and was fifty-three years of age. He graduated from Dartmouth, was admitted to the bar and practiced his profession, serving also in public offices. He became prominent in that field in the Granite state.

He was at one time chairman of the Democratic State Committee, represented his home district in the Legislature and was a candidate for Congress.

He was one of the most popular members of the Elks. Mr. Norris was a man of strong disposition and congenial nature. One of his best friends in Boston was the late Mayor Patrick A. Collins. He leaves a wife.

The funeral services will be conducted at the late home, 5 Avenue, Beechmont, at 2 o'clock to-morrow afternoon. Burial followed a surgical operation.

ELKS FOUND HOSPITAL BED

Boston Lodge of Elks No. 10 has by unanimous vote donated $250 to the Shriners' Floating Hospital to make a bed for five years. It will be called "Boston Lodge of Elks Bed." For the past three years Boston Lodge has named a day on the hospital and it now continues its support of this worthy charity by a five-year bed contribution.

Past Exalted Ruler William H. Crone of Boston Lodge is greatly interested in the success of the Boston Floating Hospital, having seen much of the suffering of sick children in the tenement districts. Exalted Ruler James H. Walsh, a member of Boston Lodge toward this contribution, he just been appointed by the following brothers: Esteemed Leading Knight Dr. T. H. O'Connor, Esteemed Loading Knight Charles P. Hurley, Secretary Daniel J. Kane, Charles H. Hanlon, A. J. Ell, Jr., Joseph F. O'Connell and Past Exalted Ruler James H. Walsh.

Mr. Crone has spoken in Malden Lodge of Elks about the desirability of helping the floating hospital, and it is hoped that other Elk lodges about Boston will follow the example of Boston Lodge.

The Winthrop Yacht Club has promised Mr. Crone to donate the proceeds of one of its dances next Winter to the hospital treasury. The hospital has a new boat this year, but needs more money to complete the equipment.

UNLOCKS CELL, DIGS WAY OUT

LACONIA, N. H., Sept. 18.—Edward Chenard of Manchester, N. H., escaped from the city jail last night by picking the lock of his cell, using a piece of wire taken from his bedstead, and dug through the brick wall of the jail with the iron leg of his bedstead.

He was committed in default of bonds on a charge of breaking and entering, and was held for the Grand Jury.

ELECT VOLIVA ZION CITY HEAD

CHICAGO, Ill., Sept. 19.—The people of Zion City yesterday elected Wilbur Glen Voliva their leader by the overwhelming vote of 191 to 6 for his opponent, A. J. Ellis.

The election was held under the direction of Judge Landis of the United States District Court, who was asked some time ago to settle the controversy between Alexander Dowie and Voliva as to who should have control of Zion City.

BODY IS HELD BY 'RED TAPE'

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Sept. 19.—Because the post surgeon at Fort Adams, at Newport, failed to send a certificate of death, as required by law, to officials of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad here, the body of Private Ephraim Lajoie was held over night, instead of being sent to Hartford, whose burial was to take place.

When the railroad officials asked for the death certificate it was discovered that it had not been brought. It was decided that a certificate sent by telegraph would be accepted, but it arrived too late.

KILLED IN FIST FIGHT; OPPONENT IS IN JAIL

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—Henry Strackkamp is dead and Henry Ryan is in jail at White Plains as the result of a prize fight held yesterday in the dancing pavilion of the Bungalow, run by Antonio Sallie, at Harrison-on-the-Sound.

Five hundred yards from the arena lives Justice of the Peace John Strackkamp, brother of the dead man. The same house shelters Strackkamp's widow and three children, the oldest only six years of age.

Officials See Fight.

The fight was held in the presence of 150 persons, among whom, it is said, were several deputy sheriffs and other officials. A ring was pitched in the centre of the hall by means of ropes tied to chairs. Several bouts preceded the main event, in which Strackkamp and Ryan were to meet. They were bloodless affairs of the exhibition order, and the crowd yelled for action when the principals stepped through the ropes.

Ryan at 140 pounds was twenty pounds lighter than his opponent, but they put up a hard battle until the seventh round. Strackkamp having a shade the better of it. Ryan put his man down twice in the seventh, and when the fighting began in the eighth round blood was flowing freely suddenly Ryan landed a blow to the solar plexus, and Strackkamp was knocked to the floor unconscious.

Walks Unaided from Ring.

Strackkamp rolled in a few minutes and walked from the ring unaided. In the dressing room he relapsed and Dr. Perier, who was called, could do nothing to save him. He died an hour later.

An autopsy by Coroner Van Patten revealed the cause of death a heart failure induced by a blow. Ryan heard the news at Port Chester, where he is employed at the Old Ladies' Home, and immediately surrendered. Coroner Van Patten is collecting a list of prominent persons who saw the fight and will subpoena them for the inquest.

HOSPITAL FIRE. BOY'S LANTERN

MANCHESTER, N. H., Sept. 19.—A fire at 1111 Crest, a private hospital in East Manchester, last night caused great alarm among the patients, nurses and other inmates.

A boy with a jack-o-lantern accidentally set fire to some draperies in one of the rooms, and the flames spread to the furniture. The nurses, assisted by some of the patients who were able to get about, and people living in the vicinity, brought water, and by night caused a garden hose had the fire under control when the fire department arrived.

The War Record of "Dixie" McMain Who Has Lost His Job

James B. McMain, known all over the West and North ends as "Dixie," has lost his city job.

He is sixty-six years old, and when the Civil War began left the Lawrence mill where he was working to ship aboard the frigate Ohio. He served on that famous ship and the Colorado before he became one of the crew of the Mississippi.

He was one of Admiral Farragut's sailors when the Union fleet passed Forts Philip and Jackson and captured New Orleans.

"Dixie" McMain served on the same ship in this campaign with Admiral Dewey, then a junior officer.

He re-enlisted and served on the Princeton and the Juniata.

When his second enlistment in the navy expired he joined the Union army. He was a private in Company D of the Twenty-sixth Massachusetts Volunteers.

He served with General Sheridan in the Shenandoah Valley and was one of the men who held Early's army back until Sheridan made his famous ride "From Winchester twenty miles away."

He was shot down at the battle of Cedar Creek and lay in a hospital three months.

He fled from there for fear surgeons would amputate his arm and rejoined his regiment, although still on the disabled list.

PRETTY MILL GIRL GONE 5 DAYS; BAFFLING MYSTERY

MISS ETHEL SMITH

MISSING LAWRENCE MILL GIRL.

Ethel Smith, Age 16, Kissed Mother Good-by and Then Vanished.

LAWRENCE, Sept. 19.—Mystery surrounds the disappearance of pretty 16-year-old Ethel Smith, who left her home nearly a week ago to draw her pay at the Arlington mills, where she had been employed as a weaver for over a year. Assistant Marshal Logan, who has been directing the search for the missing girl, declares that her case is the strangest that the police of this city have ever been called upon to investigate.

When she kissed her mother and left her home at 40 Holly street last Friday afternoon she was apparently happy, care-free young woman that has made a host of friends in her little social circle.

"I will be back soon, mother," she said, and asked if there was anything needed at the store that she might get on her way back. Neither her anxious mother and father, nor her two other sisters, Ida and Alice, employed in the mill, had any reason to suspect that Ethel would not be home to supper that night. But not a word have they heard from her since.

The watchman at the mill states that Ethel called for pay as an attractive young woman, much older than herself, and drew her pay. Another friend declares she saw the missing Ethel on Manchester street early Sunday morning, another has reported that she saw her on Tuesday night, while still another asserts she saw her in the vicinity of the Farnon school-house. All of them agree that the pretty young girl was alone, and, indeed, that her clothing was unchanged. The efforts of the police up to date, however, have been without result.

Mrs. Wyer has received a clue from Lowell, and Assistant Marshall Logan to-day, and is following it up. It seems clues with nothing at the end of them are as much in the dark as ever, and do one thing after another from this baffling case.

In the little home on Holly street, a distracted mother fears each moment that the door bell will ring and she will receive terrible tidings of her missing girl.

"It is all a terrible mystery to us," declares Mrs. Smith. "Ethel had no young men friends. She was never out at night. She was fond of music. She was anxious to improve herself mentally and in her home, and spent the evenings at home in study. There was one young woman who whom we forbade Ethel associating, and so far as a mother can know Ethel gave up her friendship. If she is staying away of her own accord, we will forgive her everything if she will only come to us and let us some word that she is safe. This terrible suspense is killing us."

3,000 SOULS AND $10,000,000, RIDES TEMPEST

NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—Bearing $10,000,000 in specie and nearly 3,000 passengers, the big turbine steamship Carmania of the Cunard line fought her way through the great hurricane of last week and arrived here to-day. It was the same hurricane that buffeted so many transatlantic liners. The Carmania, with her precious burden, was caught in the thick of it.

Of all the ships that have brought in reports of the hurricane, the officers of the Carmania say that the worst is over. It has been predicted by experts that the further edge of calmness will prove most seaworthy. This is borne out by passengers who say that, although the waves whipped by the furious storm, were mountainous, the rocks on the cabin table were not disturbed.

RUNNING SORES COVERED LIMBS

Little Girl's Obstinate Case of Eczema — Instantaneous Relief By Cuticura — Little Boy's Hands and Arms Also Were a Mass of Torturing Sores — Grateful Mother Says:

"CUTICURA REMEDIES A HOUSEHOLD STANDBY"

"In reply to your letter I write you my experience, and you are privileged to use it as you see fit. Last year, after having my little girl treated by a very prominent physician for an obstinate case of eczema, I resorted to the Cuticura Remedies, and was so well pleased with the almost instantaneous relief afforded that we discarded the physician's prescription and relied entirely on the Cuticura Soap, Cuticura Ointment, and Cuticura Pills. When she commenced to walk the sores broke-edise her feet and limbs were covered with running sores. In about six weeks we had her completely well, and there has been no recurrence of the trouble.

"In July of this year a little boy in our family poisoned his hands and arms with poison oak, and for about four hours he hands and arms were a mass of torturing sores. We used only the Cuticura Remedies, washing his hands and arms with the Cuticura Soap, and anointed them with the Cuticura Ointment, and kept on him the Cuticura Resolvent. In about three weeks his hands and arms healed up; so we have lots of cause for feeling grateful for the Cuticura Remedies. We find that the Cuticura Remedies are a valuable household standby, living as we do twelve miles from a doctor, and where it costs from twenty to twenty-five dollars to come up on the mountain. Respectfully, Mrs. Linda Vincent Thomas, Fairmount, Walden's Ridge, Tenn., Oct. 13, 1905."

MAY SUE FOR ALL NIGHT HOLD-UP ON B & M

Irate Passengers in Portsmouth-Eliot Delay Threaten Action Against Road.

DELAY WAS INEXCUSABLE

Special to the Boston American.

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Sept. 19.—That the Boston & Maine Railroad will be sued by many of the wealthy passengers of two trains which were stalled all night between Portsmouth and Eliot is now a certainty. The delay in clearing the debris and the feeble effort to move the trains is now charged as one of the worst blunders in the history of railroading in New Hampshire.

Women with babes in their arms had to remain in the unlighted cars, while their infants cried for milk. It was a very cold night and the little ones suffered greatly. Some of the indignant passengers finally walked through the sand along the track for four miles to get food at Portsmouth, where they landed at dawn.

On arrival at Portsmouth depot they found the restaurant locked, and nearly broke down the doors before the proprietor ordered the doors open to feed the hungry crowd.

Engine Disabled.

The cause of the trouble was due to an accident on the "Flying Yankee," from Portland for Boston, due in Portsmouth at about 9 o'clock. The engine to this train broke a tire on her driver shortly after passing Eliot. The train was stopped and the wrecking crew at Portsmouth notified.

It took the wrecker over an hour to go the four miles. The "Mountain" train from the White Mountains, loaded down with wealthy vacationists on their way to Boston and New York, came up to the wreck.

Instead of sending this train back to Conway Junction via Great Falls or Dover, and then over the Western division into Boston, which could have been done with but little delay, it was held up all night while the engine of the first train was being jacked up.

This trouble could have been averted in another way—by having the injured engine pushed slowly along to a siding at Butler's Crossing, one mile away. This would have cleared the track. Instead of that the wreckers worked all night, before making any headway.

Ten Hours of Delay.

After ten hours' delay the track was cleared and the irate passengers reached Portsmouth half frozen and very hungry. It was a terrible experience.

No telegraph operator was sent with the wrecking crew, which is customary on other roads. For this reason nothing was heard from the scene of the wreck from the time it was reported until the trains slowly pulled into Portsmouth.

dretty Runaway Milton Maid Admitted $150 Theft From Her Mother.

Miss Mary C. McCormick of Milton, the former "Hello" girl at Milton Telephone Exchange, who pleaded guilty to a charge of larceny of $150 worth of clothing and other goods from her mother, Mrs. Catherine M. McCormick of Milton, comes into the Norfolk Superior Court at Dedham to-day to be sentenced.

Miss McCormick left Milton suddenly last April and went to New York. A young man named George Forsythe left at the same time. The pair were arrested in New York and brought back for trial in the District Court at Quincy. The Grand Jury returned a true bill against the girl, but exonerated Forsythe. When the case came to trial the girl admitted the larceny.

FIRST HARVARD NEWSBOY TO BE NAMED BY ELIOT

President to Select Union's Scholarship Student at Next Meeting, September 30.

GOV. GUILD TO BE PRESENT

President Eliot will announce the name of the first newsboy to become a student at Harvard University under the union's educational plan and scholarship fund at the meeting of the Newsboys' Union of this city, Sunday afternoon, September 30, in Faneuil Hall, Ashburton place and Hawkins street. It is expected that Governor Guild and a number of other prominent men will be present and address the meeting, as will President Eliot.

Both Governor Guild and President Eliot are honorary members of the Newsboys' Union. The former gave a letter of introduction to two prominent members of the union, Nathan S. Sodekson and Simon Rubinovitch, who are now in Washington and hope to meet President Roosevelt. The letter is addressed to the President, and reads as follows:

"My dear Mr. President: I take pleasure in presenting to you Nathan S. Sodekson and Simon Rubinovitch, active members in the Newsboys' Protective Union of Boston. Both these young gentlemen have been active in good work for the uplifting and the education of their fellows, and I trust you may be able to give them a hearing and consideration."

The two boys were sent to Washington by the union to attend the session of the executive board of the American Federation of Labor for the purpose of contesting the claim of the teamsters' union for jurisdiction over the "Canada point" boys, as wholesale distributors and sales agents to the newsboys for certain newspapers are termed.

BIGAMIST'S JAIL TERM REVOKED

The two years' sentence for bigamy imposed last week by Judge Bell on Joseph Perry of East Cambridge has been revoked, and yesterday Perry was released. It was shown to the court that Perry had acted in good faith when he married his second wife, who was Miss Carolina Anjos of East Cambridge, two years ago.

Perry believed the wife he had married fourteen years ago, and whom he had not seen for eight years, was dead. Perry has agreed to pay his first wife four dollars a week and his second wife two dollars a week. He has also agreed to pay his first wife's expenses back to California.

"HARD LUCK" SON OF MILLIONAIRE TO BRAVE THE HOOK AS AN ACTOR

RUFUS HATCH; FIGHTS TO REGAIN WEALTH.

Rufus Hatch Works Hard to Redeem Wealth Which He Has Squandered.

Rufus Hatch contemplates a new attack on fortune by going on the stage.

At the Columbia Theatre next Friday night—amateur night—this impoverished son of a millionaire father will make his professional debut as a monologist—the engagement being in the nature of a "try out," and for one night only.

In the course of a characteristically breezy talk with a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter, in which he outlined his luminous post, pernicious present and shadowy future, Mr. Hatch said:

"I've tried my hand at about everything, from running a bank to washing dishes in a restaurant. I've never been afraid of work. I've never been ashamed of it. I've known the luxuries of affluence as well as the pangs of want. Now I have not only myself to keep, but I've a good wife to support, for now I feel a call from the stage, and that's where I'm intending to try and earn an honest living—at least for a time."

On the occasion of his debut next Friday night Mr. Hatch will sing two songs of his own composition—a parody and a supermade. If the gallery stands for the singing he will give imitations of the late Henry Irving in "Henry VIII" and frisky Do Wolf Hopper in "Casey at the Bat." If calls for an encore are drowned by these the "Hooks" Mr. Hatch will be found ready to respond.

Born to Great Wealth.

Rufus Hatch was born to great wealth, which he quickly dissipated in disastrous speculation and hospitality of the boisterous kind.

For twenty consecutive years his father, "Uncle Rufus," was managing director of the Pacific Steamship Company, and one of the biggest of the big figures in the financial world.

In 1895, two years after his father's death, young Hatch married Miss A. M. Lood, daughter of a multi-millionaire lumberman, and settled down with her in Montreal, where he became manager of the Canadian fruit trust. For three months he worked for twenty hours a day. Then his health broke down, and he was sent to the country to rest. His methods of "resting" were reckless and costly, and his health got worse.

In 1902 he became involved in a sensational incident in New Jersey, as a result of which his sanity was challenged and his family had him sent to a sanitarium at White Plains. Young Hatch appeales to the courts, and the courts ordered his discharge.

After a life of comparative obscurity for several years Rufus Hatch butted into the limelight again last June by marrying Miss Kathryn Kibbeln, a nurse in the Danvers Hospital for the Insane, where he, it was employed as a steward. The marriage took place as soon as the bridegroom learned that his first wife had secured a divorce, which she did in Ohio.

A Hard Luck Honeymoon.

Clouds shadowed the honeymoon of the Hatches. Mrs. W. Fiske, proprietor of the Essex House, at Salem, attached all their clothing and personal property for a board bill of $700.

Before coming to New York to New England, young Hatch was in turn a steamship magnate, bank president, stock broker, company promoter, trust manager and United States consular soldier. In the last six years he has been farmhand, shoemaker, hospital nurse and dishwasher in a Washington street restaurant.

GRACE BRYAN'S DOG BARRED FROM SCHOOL

ROANOKE, Va., Sept. 19.—The French poodle owned by Grace Bryan, daughter of William J. Bryan, has been denied the right to matriculate at Hollis Institute, where the school have refused to enter into any negotiations.

Miss Bryan's pleadings in behalf of her pet have come to naught. The authorities of Miss Bryan has been entered as a student.

PARSONS AND MURPHY WIN N.Y. PRIMARIES

Former Bowls Over the Odell-Quigg Faction While Latter Overwhelms McClellan.

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—In one of the hardest fought primary elections in the political history of Greater New York in which the organizations of both the Democratic and Republican parties were threatened, Charles F. Murphy, of Tammany Hall, and Herbert Parsons, with the Roosevelt backing, won sweeping victories last night —Murphy over the McClellan-O'Brien forces, and Parsons over the Odell-Quigg faction.

Murphy carried twenty-six districts and McClellan nine, and in five of the nine districts the McClellan man was unopposed. In only four districts where there was a contest did the McClellan forces triumph, and in two districts the primary election will be referred to the Law Committee of Tammany, with every chance that the elected leader will be deposed, as in the case of Dewey.

The result of the struggle for the mastery between the Quigg-Odell forces and the Parsons-Higgins men was more closely contested, but no sooner was Parsons of victory that two hours after the polls had closed he announced he had won safely and sent a message to that effect to President Roosevelt, who replied with congratulations.

Parsons carried twenty-one districts and the Odell-Quigg faction fourteen, a sweeping victory for the organization. It loses for Odell the control of the machinery in New York County.

Leader Murphy said last night that the Tammany organizations swept through the fight practically intact, and that the unit rule would prevail at the State convention with the 105 delegates from New York County.

There was little opposition to McCarren in Brooklyn, and he made practically a clean sweep of the districts.

In Queens the fight between the Cassidy and Bernard Harris resulted in a victory for the latter.

In Brooklyn Dady, for the Republicans, carried five districts and claims he will control the State Committee from three of the Congressional Districts. Woodruff, before the primaries had insisted that Dady would have only his own district, the 23d, where there was no opposition ticket. The Sullivans will not hold the balance of power on the new Tammany executive committee.

KILLS SELF FOR WIFE'S ACTIONS

Two men in Newton committed suicide yesterday, one by hanging and the other by taking paris green. Patrick D. Connor, aged forty, of No. 133 Pine street, West Newton, had charge of the garden work of the Boston & Albany station between Boston and Worcester. Saturday Connor's wife had trouble with a Hebrew, during which she is alleged to have pulled his whiskers. Yesterday she was locked up for drunkenness and assault. Connor took it to heart and went home early. When his daughter, Regelo, arrived she found him in the throes of paris green poisoning. He died a few minutes later. He had eight children.

William E. Culligan, of No. 20 3 places, recently released from the Tewksbury Insane Hospital, was found hanging in the cellar. He was fifty-three years of age.

REBELS DEFEAT CUBAN TROOPS; KILL 18, TAKE 36

HAVANA, Sept. 19.—President Zayas of the Liberal party stated to-day that Colonel Avalos, with 200 mounted men, had attacked a rebel force under Pino Guerra, near Las Palacios, in Pinar del Rio province. The rebels had one man killed and five wounded. The government soldiers had eighteen killed and thirty wounded. Thirty-six, including the wounded, are prisoners.

The official report of this engagement says a party of Guerra's men came to Las Palacios and sent in emissaries with an offer of surrender. Before an answer could be given the town was attacked. The ninety militiamen guarding the town fell back, leaving some dead and prisoners.

Zayas, who has just arrived from an automobile trip to the west, in the course of which he consulted with several of the insurgent leaders, said he had prevailed on them not not to come within twenty miles of Havana.

There is a report from the Isle of Pines that officers of the court there are searching the homes of Americans for firearms not as yet found. The Americans will appeal to Minister Morgan and Assistant Secretary of State Bacon to-day, with a request that a United States naval vessel be sent to the Isle of Pines.

CHARLESTOWN RALLY FOR J. B. CADOGAN

A rally in the interests of John B. Cadogan, a candidate for Representative in Ward 4, will be held in Richman Hall, No. 522 Main street, Charlestown, this evening.

TWO YEARS FOR AUTO THEFT.

DEDHAM, Sept. 19.—Two years in the House of Correction at East Dedham was the sentence administered by Judge John F. Brown in the Norfolk County Superior Criminal Court to Clarence A. Magoon of Boston, who had been convicted of stealing an automobile.

CALL GOMPERS TO PUSH LABOR'S FIGHT AT POLLS

A. F. of L. Plans Extensive Political Campaigns in the Country.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19.—The executive council of the American Federation of Labor adopted the report of the labor representation committee regarding the participation in the political campaign at yesterday's session.

The report of the committee refers to the participation of the committee in the campaign against the re-election of Representative Littlefield of Maine, and says:

"It is true that Mr. Littlefield has been re-elected, but by so small a margin that it has indeed been a great moral victory and will have a salutary influence upon labor's standing before congress in the future."

The federation has issued a textbook for the general campaign, and the report recommended authority for another appeal for funds for carrying on the campaign. The report continues:

"We recommend that representatives of affiliated organizations give their active co-operation in the coming campaign, and accept assignments to deliver addresses and participate in contests to carry out labor's plan of the campaign.

"We also request President Gompers to visit New York and Chicago as soon as possible to bring about unity of action in those cities upon labor's plan of campaign."

The council directed Mr. Gompers to appear before the house committee on post offices when it meets next month to consider changes in the postal rates, and to protest against any change which would affect the rights to which the Trade Union with other publications are now entitled."

INVESTMENT OPPORTUNITIES

I am offering customers of my office a most attractive combination investment opportunity—an opportunity where the present income on the total amount invested exceeds 7%, with a strong probability that it will exceed 12% next year. It is one of those extraordinary opportunities which I have been able to present at various times to customers of my office during the past five years, and which has enabled me to build up and maintain the largest financial agency business in the United States.

This extraordinary combination investment opportunity is fully described in "King's Financial Bulletin," a weekly financial newspaper which should be read by all interested in investment matters. It will be sent free for the asking. Write for it to-day. Address.

BUGLE CALLS JEWS TO NEW YEAR'S PRAYER

Faithful To-day Abandon Business Marts for Service at Synagogues.

SEASON OF REPENTANCE

To-night at sunset the Jewish New Year begins and the 75,000 Jews of Greater Boston abandon servile work and close their places of business in observance of the holiday. According to the Hebrew chronology this year is 5667. Every Jew, no matter how lax he may be in his religious duties the rest of the year, observes the New Year holidays by attending services at the synagogues.

The place of business of the Orthodox Jew will be closed during the entire days of the holiday, while those who are not so strict will open after having observed the holiday at least in the spirit.

The holidays are observed in repentance and in waking up the religious spirit. They are most impressive. The "Shofar," or trumpet, is blown in all the synagogues, which announces the coming of the New Year.

Greatest Feast on Calendar.

The preparations for the festival, the greatest in the Hebrew calendar, have been going on for a week past. Every household is made to glitter. It is also the time for family gatherings.

Among the reform Jews only one day is observed, while the more strict Orthodox keep two days. This is done because there is some doubt as to the day that the New Year actually begins. The ceremonies at the synagogue are most elaborate. When the finances of the congregation will permit, a choir is employed to assist the cantor in the chanting of hymns.

Ten days after New Year's the day of the Atonement, or "Yom Kippur," is observed. This is a fast, and all Jews over the age of thirteen are expected to go without meat and drink as a means of repentance for their sins during the year previous.

Services at Synagogues.

At the Union Park Street Temple the year will be ushered in with a brief address by the rabbi, M. M. Eichler. The services on Thursday and Friday will be conducted by the Rev. E. Wolkowitch, the cantor, assisted by an enlarged choir.

The Congregation Adath Israel, whose temple, at the corner of Commonwealth avenue and Blandford street, is nearing completion, will hold New Year services, as in the past, in Putter Hall. Rabbi Charles Fletscher will officiate.

At the synagogue Mishkan Tefilah, Rabbi Louis A. Alexander, will deliver three sermons.

At the new synagogue, Adath Jeshurun, on Blue Hill avenue, Roxbury, the Rev. Max Halpern will officiate.

At the Ohel Jacob Synagogue, in East Boston, Rabbi Sirk will conduct the services.

Girl Swimmers Vote Quarter-Mile Dash in Race for the American's Silver Cup

KATHERINE FONSECA. ANNA HENNESSY.

MAYROSE KELLEY. KATHERINE BERLO. ANNA BERLO.

Twelve Now Entered in Contest at City Point on Saturday.

Voting entries for the BOSTON AMERICAN'S challenge cup swimming race to decide who is the champion swimmer among Greater Boston girls under twenty years of age are now closed.

There are twelve voting entries. The most popular distance, by all odds, is one fourth of a mile. So that is pronounced the official distance.

The race will be off City Point Saturday afternoon. The exact time and the exact course will be announced later.

LATEST TO ENTER GIRLS' SWIMMING RACE.

CONDITIONS OF GIRLS' CHAMPIONSHIP SWIM

Time—Saturday afternoon, September 22.

Place—City Point, South Boston.

Distance—One-fourth mile.

Prize—Boston American silver challenge cup.

Referee—Captain E. J. De Freitas, of City Point Life Saving Station.

Age limit for contestants—Twenty years.

Supplementary entry list closes Thursday noon, September 20.

The supplementary entry list will be kept open till to-morrow noon. Those entering up to that time have no vote on the length of the course. They have to abide by the quarter-mile distance chosen by those getting in on the voting entry list, which close yesterday noon.

A Dozen Fast Swimmers.

The twelve contestants, so far, are:

Mary McDonough, No. 564 East Third street, South Boston.
Margaret McDonough, No. 564 East Third street, South Boston.
Annie Moriarty, No. 521 East Sixth street, South Boston.
Aisle Aykrod, No. 20 Wordsworth street, East Boston.
Rose Pitzpoff, No. 337 Freeport street, Dorchester.
Rose Anderson, No. 30 Wordsworth street, East Boston.
Annie O'Connor, No. 28 Locust street, South Boston.
Anna Berlo, No. 9 G street, South Boston.
Katherine Berlo, No. 9 G street, South Boston.
Katherine Fonseca, No. 18 Beds street, Winthrop.
Anna Hennessy, corner Eight and Dorchester street, South Boston.
Mayrose Kelley, No. 13 Coats avenue, Dorchester.

Out of these twelve girls seven voted for one-fourth of a mile distance. One has no choice to offer, and the other favored from one hundred yards up to a mile.

The selection of one-fourth of a mile seems the fairest, all around. The shortdistance swimmers are not feel that this is somewhat of a pull for them, and the second two mile swimmers may wish for greater endurance test. But the latter may remember, however, that it is getting late in the swimming season and that the water will not be up to July and August temperature.

Three eHats and Finals.

On account of the entries in at present and the probability of more coming, the race will be run in heats. It is expected that three heats will be satisfactory, with the winners of each heat meeting in the finals for the real fight of the challenge cup.

Two final voting entries were received in the noon mail from Anna Hennessy of South Boston and Katherine Fonseca of Winthrop. This Winthrop contestant is the only one so far from that Summer colony location. She is sixteen years old.

Anna Hennessy of South Boston is thirteen years old. She won first prize in one of the girls' races at L street bath last Summer and repeated the performance this year.

Just as these entries were read, in came Mayrose Kelley of Dorchester to see the Swimming Editor and enter for the race. She recently swam from Savin Hill to Freeport street baths and back in fifty-six minutes and forty seconds, a total distance of one and one-half miles.

SWEETHEART SOAP FREE TO AMERICAN READERS

SWEETHEART SOAP, FREE WITH COUPONS.

The above represents what readers of the SUNDAY AMERICAN may win by presentation of coupons to any dealer.

Beginning early Sunday morning with the delivery of the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN, the demand for Sweetheart Soap has continued all the week without let-up. All over New England have readers of the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN been applying for and receiving cakes of this splendid toilet preparation. Upon handing to their grocer, druggist or department store the coupon which was cut from last Sunday's paper they have received the soap absolutely free.

So great has been the demand for the soap, and in such tremendous quantities has it been dispensed this week, that the employes of the Lovejoy warehouse, in Atlantic avenue, Boston, the distributing agent for this soap for New England, have had time to attend to little else than furnish jobbers with the soap as fast as it arrives here.

When the jobbers get it they supply their retail grocer and department stores, as well as all the large department stores in New England.

Some grocers and dealers failed to get their orders for Sweetheart Soap in early, not realize the great demand that would ensue.

Some of the readers of the paper who had cut out their coupons and who have presented them to their grocer, druggist or department store may have been disappointed in not receiving the soap upon demand. This has only happened where the dealer has been slow in getting in his order for the soap or where freights have been delayed.

By the end of this week all of the dealers and storekeepers will have been supplied with Sweetheart Soap. There will be no trouble then to get it anywhere, upon presentation of the coupon from the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN. There is no pressing hurry, either, for the coupons are positively good until October 1, and any dealer who has the soap will honor them until that date.

One reason for the remarkable demand for the soap is that it has been tried and found so excellent that everyone is talking about it. That wheels the demand, of course. If one dealer has not got received Sweetheart Soap, another will readily be found who has wisely stocked up in time for the great rush that he felt sure would come when the free soap coupons were cut from the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN.

Those who had received and are now using this luxurious brand of soap will be glad to know the offer will be repeated by the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN.

The cake of soap is of goodly size and as it has been well seasoned by long drying, "lasts." That is what every housekeeper requires in any soap and to command popular favor a soap must "last" and be delicately perfumed. Both of these requirements Sweetheart Soap possesses. The soap will not melt away with the using, but remains hard and firm.

If any readers of the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN cut out the free Sweetheart Soap coupon last Sunday and has not yet obtained the cake of soap to which he is entitled, he can rest assured that he can soon do so, for by the end of this week the distribution of the soap throughout New England will be complete.

LABOR NEWS

ALLIED PRINTING TRADES LABEL COUNCIL 96 BOSTON AMERICAN NEWSPAPER PRESSMEN, MAILERS AND ASSISTANTS

Thomas J. Ryan, former recording and corresponding secretary of Boston Waiters' Union No. 90, has returned from a two months' stay in Europe. He avowed his interest in the Wage Earners' clubs which are being formed throughout Massachusetts and the country.

Mr. Ryan met Frank K. Foster, fraternal delegate to the British Trades Congress from the American Federation of Labor, in Leeds, and took of the tremendous meetings accorded Foster at all the addresses to the trades unionists of Europe.

Mr. Ryan spoke of the prominent part that trades unionists of America have played as delegates to the British Trades Congress, held annually in Leeds, when the American delegates have been the most terrible and the most advanced in thought and the most eloquent in speech of the numerous assembling at the Congress. Mr Ryan said:

"One feature of the trades union movement which is commented upon favorably by the Britons is that Americans do not play the part in shaping legislation that the Englanders do in Parliament today.

"One man said to me: 'We have the balance of power and we are the thinking and actuating influence in the legislating chambers of Great Britain, more than you in America, who now have a like influence and a like policy. We in England are pleased to realize that in America the "Grand father" of the American Federation of Labor and his advisers have decided that it is of value to the labor movement to the American Federation of Labor to enter into politics through the medium that is known as the Wage Earners' clubs of different metropolitan centres, States and congressional districts.

"In America the Wage Earners' clubs formed under the auspices of the American Federation of Labor, will exercise a humanitarian influence among the nations of the world as well as among the classes of the people that will cause mankind to realize that the home of liberty is leading ahead of the times and will keep the beacon light of civilization and of freedom paramount in thought and action in this world's twentieth century history."

ELECTRICAL WORKERS MEET.

Electrical Workers' Union No. 104, dedicated Sat'd'ay to the support of the Wage Earners' Central Club, in response to the request of the Boston Central Labor Union at last night's meeting. About 150 members were present. Business was reported good. A committee was appointed to make plans for educational hours of the union during meetings of the Winter months. William B. Murphy, formerly a prominent member of the union and now a general superintendent and foreman of construction on the Malden Electric Light company, addressed the members on ways and means of bettering their conditions.

AID FOR GOLD BEATERS.

Web Pressmen's Union received a report at last night's meeting from President Edward W. Gordon, that International vice president, who is attending a meeting of the International board of officers at Chicago, Mr. Gordon is an employe of the BOSTON AMERICAN. It was voted to assess every member twenty-five cents to aid the gold beaters who are on strike for better conditions. There are 300 members of the union. William A. McEwan, who has just returned from Maine, where he attended President Gompers of the A. F. of L., made his report.

WARD 14 ORGANIZES.

The Wage Earners' club of Ward 14 established permanent quarters last night in the Wage Earners' hall, Flood square, South Boston. The members presented President J. Frank O'Hare with a handsome roll-top desk. Settees were presented to the club by the Matthew's Episcopal Church through Secretary M. A. Murphy.

WARD 23 HOLDS MEETING.

The Ward 23 Wage Earners' club held an enthusiastic meeting last night in Old Masonic hall, Roslindale, several new members being admitted. The names of the candidates for the primaries were considered and as soon as the pledges are signed the names of the candidates indorsed will be given out.

LABOR NOTES.

The Central Labor Union executive board meets at 6:30 o'clock this evening in Pythian hall.

The Ward 9 Wage Earners' club holds an entertainment tonight at Ward 9 headquarters, Dorchester.

Business was reported good at last night's meeting of Bookbinders' Union. After the meeting a social session was held at which Bookbinders' Union No. 16 has called a special meeting for Friday to take action on the death of Secretary Treasurer Hall, although an interesting report of the meeting of Massachusetts Central Workers' Union held last night at 19 A. M. S. hall, 110 Tremont street.

The Journeymen Tailors' Union of Boston will celebrate their annual ball at Faneuil hall tomorrow night at 8:30. Tickets are 50 cents each. Members of the Ladies' Auxiliary will serve refreshments. Dancing will follow the entertainment.

Secretary Young, of the United Cloth Workers' Union, has received a letter from Colin W. Cameron, of Scotland, stating that he has arrived safely and is now in Boston. Cameron is the district Council in charge of Business agent Dee, who is now in Scotland. Cameron will be present at the meeting of the Cloth Workers' Union tonight, during the international convention of the United Textile Workers.

The indorsement of candidates will be announced at tonight's meeting of the Ward 14 Wage Earners' Club at Wells Memorial building.

CAMBRIDGE INDEPENDENTS AT ROUSING MEETING ELECT DELEGATES

Committee to Investigate Records of All Candidates for Office—Enthusiasm Growing All Over State.

At an enthusiastic meeting of Cambridge citizens, held at St. James's hall, Central square, last evening, representing the Municipal Ownership League and Independent League, of that city, a full delegation from the latter organization was elected to attend the State convention in Boston next Saturday.

Professor Frank Parsons addressed the gathering on the subject of municipal ownership. L. F. W. Rogers, who was also to have been present, was unable to be present, but sent a letter expressing his sympathy with the movement. Professor Parsons spoke interestingly of the progress of the municipal ownership movement in the United States and told of the advantages which followed the acquiring and operation by the municipality of public utilities.

President Augustus Sumner said: "The Cambridge Municipal Ownership League is organized along ward lines and in all but three wards we have active working bodies which has endeavored to elect men to the City Government, regardless of party, who are in favor of public ownership of public utilities. We are now ready to go to test against the majority report of the committee appointed by the Cambridge City Government to investigate the advisability of acquiring and operating the municipal lighting plant. We expect the committee, as condemning the action of that committee in reporting adversely."

Committee to Probe.

Councilman James F. Black said: "I have always been and am now a firm believer in municipal ownership and I shall use all my influence to further the cause. You gentlemen of the league do not need to have a resolution condemning the action of the City Council committee, because they know already how every member voted through your expression in the columns of the BOSTON AMERICAN."

Paul Wooten offered a resolution that it be the sense of the meeting that a committee be appointed to investigate the record of every candidate for office in the City Government as to his position on the matter of municipal ownership and if he has acted in direct opposition to the wishes of the citizens that it shall be the object of this organization to use its influence to defeat such candidates and use their best effort to secure the nomination and election of such men as will keep their pledges to the majority of citizens of Cambridge. The resolution was adopted.

President Albin M. Richards called the meeting to order as a meeting of the Independence League. He announced that the business of the meeting was the election of delegates to the State convention to be held next Saturday in Faneuil Hall.

Elect Delegates.

The following delegates and alternates were appointed:

Second Suffolk senatorial district, Ward 1, Michael D. Collins, Daniel Driscoll; Ward 2, Patrick J. Monahan; Ward 3, Edward J. Delbridge, Edward Gallagher, Edward Looney.

Third Middlesex district: Ward 4, Augustus Sumner, Edward Cassidy, Edward H. Higgins. Alternates, Alexander Chubin, Edward Jones, William Ware.

Second Middlesex district: Ward 5, Albin M. Richards, Herman Zangerer; Ward 6, Felix Gaggin, Michael Devine, Hugh Joel; Ward 7, Thomas H. Hildreth, Samuel McArthur; Ward 8, W. H. Veazie, Clarence E. Abernathy; Ward 9, S. McAuliffe; Ward 10, George J. Raymond; Ward 11, T. Boyle, alternates, V. Malmstrom, Harry M. Montague, Edward C. Dow and A. G. Little.

THE LILY AND THE ROSE

Type of Female Loveliness Which Means Health and Happiness.

Young girls from 15 to 18 years of age are passing through the most critical period of their lives. Just entering womanhood all the vital forces of the body are taxed to the utmost. Too often strength fails, the blood becomes weak and seems turning to water.

This is a condition of danger. The young woman often seems engulfed with the etherial beauty of the lily—a deceptive beauty, for it betrays the anemic condition of the blood, which may become chronic and leave the subject an invalid for life.

At this juncture it is well to know of the virtues of the Trappist Fathers' Phosphated Wine of Cinchona, made by the Trappist Fathers of Oka, Canada. It is the sovereign remedy for anemia, debility, poor blood and all nervous disorders. It revitalizes and invigorates. It brings the bloom of health to the cheeks and transforms the lily to the rose, which is the type of female loveliness, which means health and happiness.

All young girls suffering from anemia, all young wives and mothers, all women who by reason of illness or overwork are nervous, all run down and discouraged will find in Trappist Fathers' Phosphated Wine of Cinchona a renewal of buoyant health and happiness.

Delays are positively dangerous. Begin with the Trappist Fathers' Wine at once and note the immediate improvement. For all female troubles it is the safest and most effective tonic and corrective. All druggists sell it.

FALL RIVER TO HOLD MONSTER MEETING

Special to the Boston American.

FALL RIVER, Sept. 19.—This evening in Spinners' hall on South Main street a meeting will be held in connection with the Independence League movement that is sweeping the country, that is expected to prove one of the most enthusiastic that was ever held in Fall River.

There can be little doubt but what the Independence League is bound to be a popular political movement in Fall River. The branch organized here a couple of weeks ago is not in the preliminary stage of which its promoters firmly believe will be an organization which will place the political tricksters, who through greed for gain, or desire for power would deprive the people of their right to govern themselves and to select their own representatives instead of having them chosen for them by corrupt political rings, where they belong.

Fall River voters have demonstrated on more than one occasion that they are the kind who can be depended upon to take part in any independent movement when their interests are at stake. For many years the late Robert Howard, than whom there never was a more staunch friend of the working people, and himself the secretary of what was then the strongest trade union in this city, was repeatedly sent to the State Senate, though he was a Democrat and the district strongly Republican.

Famed for Independence.

Following him came Senator William Moran, also a Democrat, a barber, who led the interests of the working people at heart at all times. Independence is voting regularly sent him to the Senate from this same Republican district.

The overthrow of Governor Bates because of his veto of the overtime bill, brought about in large measure by the famed "Flying Wedge," is another example of the way in which Fall River voters show their independence.

This, then, is the field in which a number of active workers, thoroughly imbued with the principles adopted by the Independence League, are working, and they are daily canvassing the various wards in this city to gather in recruits. The fruits of their labors will be displayed at the meeting which is to be held tonight, and it is confidently predicted that this meeting will be a rousing one.

President John S. Gardner of the league in this city says:

"I feel that we are going to have a big meeting tonight. I have been going around considerably lately and have left a large number of application blanks with people who I think will join. I cannot tell, of course, how many new members will come in at the meeting tonight, but wherever I have been there when I have taken with express their sympathy with the principles of the league."

EVERETT LEAGUE BY UNANIMOUS VOTE INDOSES MORAN

Special to the Boston American.

EVERETT, Sept. 19.—John R. Moran was indosed unanimously as the candidate for Governor by the Everett branch of the Independence League at an enthusiastic meeting held last evening. The meeting took place at Glendale square and was largely attended by people of all political parties.

Three delegates were elected to the convention of the State League, to be held at Faneuil Hall next Saturday. The delegates selected were Thomas J. Hawkins, Henry C. Ford and Thomas L. Keefe. When the selection of the delegates had been finished a vote of those present was taken as to whom they wished as candidate for Governor, and it was unanimous for Moran.

Two men were indorsed for Representative—a Republican and a Democrat. William E. Weeks is the former and Thomas J. Hawkins the latter. Much enthusiasm prevailed at the meeting, and it was said by many of those present that the organization was the most active and energetic that was ever formed in this city.

ENTHUSIASM RULES AT FORMING OF NEW LEAGUE IN DANVERS

Special to the Boston American.

DANVERS, Sept. 19.—A temporary branch of the Independence League was formed in this place last evening, the meeting being participated in by an enthusiastic crowd of citizens.

Nicholas J. Murray was elected presiding officer and made a brief speech, in which he said that in his opinion the time had come for forming the old parties. William N. Osgood, president of the State League, was present and made a speech that was listened to attentively. At a later meeting of the League delegates will be elected to attend the convention at Boston next Saturday.

The meeting was called to order by President Simmons, who said in part:

"I am more than pleased to note the large number of members present here this evening and I can readily observe that the good cause we are undertaking is meeting the approval of fair minded citizens of this and other wards of the city, as well as from the various part of the State. We have broken ground for the pathway of Independence and we are well under way in building a strong foundation. With this well in hand I am sure that all liberal minded men will follow in our footsteps.

"We want men who are opposed to graft in politics, and will openly say so. We want men who want to see the labor union properly recognized in their good cause.

"Let us show the party leaders that we are independent and that our main object in view will be to overthrow that rule that has bound the people in this ward for years solely for the benefit of a few, who have participated in what seems to me to be an everlasting graft."

Several other interesting speeches were made, after which the members freely discussed the readiness of the league.

The delegates elected to represent the branch at the State convention on Saturday next were Henry A. Simmons, Lewis Simmons, David Adelson and Joseph A. Di Pesa.

INTERESTING FACTS.

For Nearly Every Man, Woman or Child.

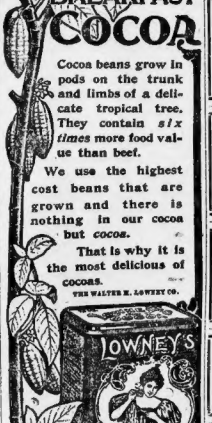
A short time ago we published an article recommending to our readers the new discovery for the cure of Dyspepsia, called Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, and the claims then made regarding the wonderful curative properties of the remedy have been abundantly sustained by the facts. People who were cautious about trying new remedies advertised in the newspapers and were finally induced to give Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets a trial were surprised and delighted at the results. In many cases a single package costing but 50 cents at any drug store made a complete cure, and in every instance the most beneficial results were reported. From a hundred or more received we have space to publish only a few of the latest but scores more are received so many commer'-'ory letters that we shall publish each week a fresh list of genuine, unsolicited testimonials of value or publish the same one twice.

From James Yemmelaier, LaCrosse, Wis.: Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are doing me more than anything I have tried and I was so pleased at results that I gave away several boxes to my friends who have also had the same benefit.

From Jacob Anthony, Portmurray, New Jersey: I have taken Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets with the best results. I had Dyspepsia for 6 years, and had taken a great deal of medicine, but only got relief, and that slight at first hold and I feel good. I am a farmer and lime burner and I heartily recommend to everyone who has any trouble with his stomach to use these Tablets.

From Mrs. M. K. West, Preston, Minn.: I have received surprisingly good effects from using Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. I gave one-half of my last box to a friend who also suffered from indigestion and she had the same good results.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are a certain cure for all forms of Indigestion. They are not claimed to be a cure-all, but are prepared for stomach trouble only. Any physician or druggists everywhere recommend them to all persons suffering from Nervous Dyspepsia, Sour or acid stomach, heartburn, bloating or wind on stomach and similar disorders.



Cocoa beans grow in pods on the trunk and limbs of a delicate tropical tree. They contain six times more food value than beef.

We use the highest cost beans that are grown and there is nothing in our cocoa but cocoa.

That is why it is the most delicious of cocoas.

MEN FROM BOTH PARTIES START OFF MILFORD LEAGUE

Special to the Boston American.

MILFORD, Sept. 19.—Unusual enthusiasm marked the organization at this place last evening of a Milford branch of the Independence League. The following officers were elected: President, P. J. Darcy; secretary, Edward King.

The meeting was called to order by W. P. Clancy, secretary of the Central Labor Union. He is a member of the Wage Earners' club. Many Republicans and Democrats were enrolled as members. Mr. Clancy made a ringing speech as to the progress of the league throughout the State.

Mr. Clancy then introduced E. Gerry Brown of Brockton, who was loudly cheered. Mr. Brown, in a ringing speech severely arraigned the trusts and corporations. Mr. Brown said in part:

CHARGES NOT PROVEN.

BROCKTON, Sept. 19.—In State President Francis J. Clarke of the Federation of Labor failed yesterday to substantiate his charges of interference with the voting of the lasters in the election for general president of the Boot and Shoe Workers' Union, at a hearing given by the general inspectors of the election.

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 19.—If the owners of the Boston club succeed in persuading Chick Stahl that it is to his best interests to take charge of the club as manager next season, Detroit fans are ready to admit right away the wisdom of their choice. In the few days in which Stahl has really had charge of the club, though crippled in his hands, it has, nevertheless, played the scrappiest kind of ball it has shown here this season.

In yesterday's game the players were all pulling for the side, one could see coming from the benches, slapping each other on the back for good work and exhibiting the finest sort of feeling, which contributed to the same result in the winning of the game. In addition to this, the Fort Wayne chicken fancier was in the spot light himself from start to finish. He got four scorching drives out of five times at bat and would have had five but for a great stop by Coughlin of a line drive, speared in one hand. He fielded with splendid judgment and yanked Glaze out at just the proper time, when the lad had obviously shot his bolt. The way the club is pulling for Stahl and the way Stahl is pulling for the club makes the combination look like an excellent one, judged on the basis of the two games played here.

Charley Murphy's champion Celeste Cubs will play the Tenneyites for the second time in their series of three games at the South End grounds this afternoon, the local nine won the opening game in easy fashion, but Manager Chance of the Colts says they will be up against a different proposition this afternoon, and that his boys will win in a romp.

The Cubs are a fast aggregation, although they did not display any great form yesterday. Their strength lies in their teamwork, which is superior to that of any other team in the country at the present time. There is no such thing as big stars, but every man on the nine shoves his own individuality into the play, and as a result they move like clockwork.

Reulbach, who has been pitching phenomenal ball for the Cubs lately, will most likely face the Beaneaters, while Gus Dorner will most likely do the twirling for the home team.

SAILORS VS. J. P. A. C.

The Jamaica Plain A. C. will play a game of ball with the battleship Rhode Island team this afternoon at Wood Island Park. PRINCETON, N. J., Sept. 19.—The football team has got down to work in earnest at last. To-day, for the first time, the men tackled the dummy after the usual round of punting and passing the ball. They are getting used to handling the pigskin, and are not given to fumbling as at first.

THIRTY MEN COURT DEATH IN VANDERBILT RACE

BY J. C. KERRISON.

All of the thirty men who are to participate in the Vanderbilt elimination on Long Island Saturday fully realize what desperate chances they are taking when they engage in such an exacting undertaking as this. The becoming of a bolt as Barney Oldfield would say, the puncturing of a tire, the breaking of a steering gear, the sudden running into an obstruction, all these things have to be guarded against if possible, is likely to throw the driver out of the race if not kill or severely injure them. There are thirty men interested in the race as participants, although not every one has either an entry or a car. To the average person the number of fifteen drivers to start in a race would mean that there are fifteen other individuals engaged in the contest. These are not to be reckoned as are the operators of a team, whose names have a certain property during the past week or two, but as they are employed by the owners of the operators they are soon to lose importance, and can be replaced as readily and as quickly as can the man who fits an axle hanger and drives the car to victory or perdition.

In such races as these the poor mechanician is oft times overlooked, forgotten, placed in the background. When the credit is won and victory alights upon the shoulders of one man, his companion who has sat on the footboard or been strapped in the second seat, and has worked like a beaver, is forgotten. Even in a race like this will the name of Disz's companion in the Atlantic City event, the name of the man who acted as mechanic for Hemery in the Vanderbilt, of the man who accompanied Heath in the inaugural race on the Long Island remembered. Not one tenth of those who witnessed the struggle, and yet one of the sporting lore, and countless thousands of those who did not witness the struggles, can tell you instantly the name of the winner.

The poor mechanic is forgotten. He is considered as a part of the machine itself, and as such gains little or no fame. Yet people who know will tell you that it takes more real nerve and backbone to act as mechanic on a racing machine than it does to drive one. The operator has his satisfaction, for it is his own hands. The mechanic sits and works like an automaton. His place is to do as he is told, even if he knows it is wrong. "It's not a reason why" with him. He must act and do what he is told, and upon oiling or adjusting the car as it flashes from curve to curve he often wonders what the man at the wheel will be up to next. He can see nothing towards him at fearful pace. He never knows what will be the next turn of the man behind the wheel. The road has but little chance to think. He is at action. The man on the footboard has ample opportunity to think of the great risks he is taking, although to be sure he at times is all action. A cool, steady individual, a man who has agreed upon the risk of death, as it were, to obey implicitly the instructions of the driver, is the one selected for such an undertaking, and with the public at large thinks out little or not at all, those behind the scenes respect and admire such men.

Of the thirty men at these rise to high estate in the racing world, as shown by the records, but one or two men who are now at the wheels of some of the greatest racing cars in the world.

A little reminiscence on the Thomas cars in which he called "Indy Injun" Dan, the pilots of a convex Yahaped piece of wood, which he fitted to the cross steering rod, extending almost the entire length. The apex of this wooden bar is brought to a point at the front end of the car, while the base is to the cross rod with copper wire.

A proper adjustment of this dog's stay on a course while a race is in progress and the driver, by the use of the cross steering gears and radiators have often been known to make a complete circle of the track and the cars have been put out of the race.

With the "Indy Injun" contrivance, the keen edge, aided by the impetus caused by the great speed of the car, was sufficient to cut a path for it, reducing to a minimum the jar and strain on the cross steering rod.

OLDFIELD TO START IN RACE ON SATURDAY

NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—Barney Oldfield American Automobile Club champion, who is in Bridgeport with the Vanderbilt Cup Company, will probably be a contestant in the real Vanderbilt Cup race.

Oldfield has felt very bitter toward an American manufacturer for importing drivers for American cars, claiming that there are plenty of good drivers on this side of the water. He has received several offers from manufacturers in this country to drive their cars in the race, but says the offers he received involved about one-tenth of the money he is worth to a manufacturer for a team in the Vanderbilt race.

Barney learned last night that the Mercedes people had given up hope of getting cars here opened by long distance telephone and will ship them to Milwaukee. William Pickens, manager for Oldfield, left last night to confer with the driver.

W. K. Vanderbilt, jr., has been mentioned as a probable driver for the car in question, but the millionaire in a message to Oldfield denies the rumor.

Oldfield says he desires to make a showing on a foreign car to get back at the American manufacturer.

The presence of W. K. Vanderbilt, jr., on the cup course for the past week is said to have caused tremendous excitement in some quarters, and marvelous stories of the time he made around the Nassau circuit have got in circulation.

It is hoped that the Mercedes will be here in time for the race, as it is said that the cars are of the latest pattern, and yesterday some of the afternoon papers could find room to say in a few lines that they had arrived.

The facts of the case are that on Sunday Mr. Vanderbilt started out from his Deepdale estate with the intention of making a few laps, but a punctured tire put the car out of business and it took nearly forty minutes to complete the lap, or about 100 minutes slower than the record made by Heath in the Locomobile on the same course on Saturday. Yesterday morning no one could drive a car at anything like the speed made by Heath, and Vanderbilt took just five minutes to make the circuit of the course.

While Vanderbilt and his car were round the far end of the course, in the place of road on the Jericho turnpike near Westbury railroad station, a horse and buggy had to stop to allow it to pass. While he was waiting, Herbert Lee and Dr. Pugsley, both well known in the city, but managed to stop his horse in time to avoid a collision. Lee and Pugsley were in a hurry to get to the city and could get quite acute language Rosenbaum and Vanderbilt, but the latter was apparently entirely unconcerned laughing with the other two men.

The attention of the Vanderbilt Cup Commissioners and the supervisors of Nassau county has been called to the fact that the Jericho turnpike after the race leave the course is in bad condition, and it is almost impossible for automobiles to travel in the ruts. The road will be repaired and constructed in such a manner that the automobiles will be able to occupy it in its present position.

In Hard Battle With Kid Goodman in the Chelsea Club

MEXICAN GETS THE DECISION

After fifteen rounds of the fiercest milling in the ring ever seen in this city, Aurelio Herrera, the Mexican fighter of Bakersfield, Cal., won the decision over Kid Goodman, the Hub boy, at the Lincoln A. C. last night.

It was one of the most difficult verdicts to render which has come under the jurisdiction of Referee Martin Flaherty, and there were many differences of opinion when the Mexican was named as the winner. It was a contest that demanded the finest kind of judging because of the style displayed by both boys. That they failed to finish Goodman was ever wading in, setting the pace and forcing the fighting all over the ring. Herrera, as on his previous appearance here, was satisfied to fill any opponent do all the work and waited for an opportunity to land a knockout punch. He came close to obtaining his object, as he had Goodman in a partly dazed condition on two occasions, but was so slow in action that he could not follow up the advantage to get with any success.

Many of the Kid's admirers maintained that their favorite scored first and last because of his forcing tactics and his ability to block many of the Mexican's swings.

For half a dozen rounds Goodman was decidedly in the foreground of the battle, rushing the Mexican to break ground from his irresistible rushes and driving in clinches. Then the Mexican woke up a bit and came out of his defensive style, getting to Goodman with powerful rights to the jaw, which connected in the ninth round, but the Kid never lost control of his wits, though in a dazed condition, and pulled through with the help of the Mexican's inability to speed up at the vital moment.

Two gamsters never strived for victory in the roped enclosure with a greater display of viciousness to get the winner's end in short notice. Goodman was especially aggressive, doing all the leading, while Herrera was content to let him come on and counter or catch him before he could land. Had the Kid waited for the Mexican to do the pacing it would have been a different story to-night.

The Kid deserved a lot of credit for his forcible tactics, as he never wavered, even when the Mexican did cross him to the jaw, and he showed better than on any other occasion. He scored often on the Mexican, but the latter was too tough to put up any opposition on, and after taking considerable punishment finally reached the Kid with his noted wallop, but it never stopped him from going in.

KEPT THE MEXICAN BUSY.

The Kid tore in like a demon at all stages and kept the Mexican busy stepping away and covering up, but the swarthy cruchunun was too crafty to let the Kid catch him anywhere, and waited his opportunity, counting on many openings which the Kid offered. The Mexican had a peculiar shift, feinting with either hand, and it bothered the Kid a lot and held him in check when the Mexican wanted a breathing spell.

As early as the second round the Mexican connected with his savage right to the jaw, and the Kid looked badly placed for an instant, but he recovered quickly and got in his stride again. This and the ninth rounds were the only ones when Goodman was in any danger of getting the sleep potion.

The Mexican never showed any signs of distress, though he had spasms of weariness which benefitted the Kid.

He brushed the Kid's body with left hooks, but Goodman succeeded in fathoming these and blocked many to the body on his arm and took those to the head on his glove.

It was a crowded house of fans who watched the play fray and endured the intense heat which prevailed, forgetting their troubles in the interest of the stiff go between the mitt disputants.

TERRY McGOVERN THERE.

Terry McGovern came over from New York especially to witness the scrap between the pair of prominent lightweights and be on hand to challenge the winner. The ex-champion feels overweight at present condition and rested strongly for Herrera to win.

The Mexican looked overweight, and he was, as he allowed to weigh at the appointed time and lost his forfeit, while Goodman was reduced in the minute and made the weight called for, 135 pounds, without any trouble.

When the boys entered the ring Goodman was a hot favorite at odds of 5 to 4, and he looked good for the money.

That his condition was perfect was attested by his ability to withstand the terrific walloops which the Mexican fastened on and would have floored him had he not been in the best of trim.

After the bout was over Herrera announced that he broke an old bruise in his right hand in the fourth round, and had to favor the hand, but in the latter rounds took a chance for a knockout with it in the preliminaries Billy Gleavey, of South Boston, won over Tommy Murray in two rounds. Murray substituted for his brother, who got into some trouble earlier in the day and could not appear.

In the second bout Young Cahill and Young Sullivan, both of Roxbury, had a warm contest for eight rounds, which was won by the former.

GILMORE WILL JOIN WHITE CO.

A veritable surprise was sprung on the local motor world when it yesterday became known that E. A. Gilmore of the Rambler Company was to sever his connection with that concern and become associated with Carle Paige in the handling of White steamers in New York city. While the news is by no means public, "till" as he is familiarly called, now being known as the successful social man; further than that he is popular, which, together with his executive ability, placed him in the very front rank of the local men. He is a prominent officer of the Boston Automobile Dealers' Association, the watch dog of the show treasury, he being the treasurer of the show committee for the past two of the show committee for the past two years. He is also a director of the Bay State Automobile Association, he, together with Harry Fosdick, W. W. Burke and the writer, being the organizers and real factors of the B. S. A. A., which is to-day the strongest motoring organization in this country.

SULLIVAN IS ELECTED AGAIN

NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—The annual meeting of the Metropolitan Association of the Amateur Athletic Union of the United States, which was held at the St. Bartholomew A. C. last evening, extended far into the morning hours. The election of officers was the election of officers and the registration committee. James E. Sullivan of the Pastime A. C., was unanimously elected president, George F. Pawling of the Artisans order of M. P., Philadelphia, was elected vice-president, and H. Obertubbesing was re-elected secretary-treasurer.

BENNETTS ARE CHAMPS.

The Bennett A. C. of Somerville, who defeated the Institute of Cambridge last Saturday, challenge the winner of the Nonquset-Dorchester-Institutes contest, to play a series of three games on neutral grounds. The Bennetts have won twenty-two straight games, which is a record for the season, claim the championship and stand ready to defend the title against all comers. Address W. H. FOXY JACK O'BRIEN ON COAST LOOKING UP CLUBS

By Boston American Leased Wire.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Sept. 19.—Philadelphia Jack O'Brien arrived in Los Angeles yesterday from San Francisco. This may sound like a joke, but it is not. This time the Philadelphia real estate dealer is really here, red neckle, kid gloves, lavender spats, Piccadilly accent and all.

But he did not hurry to the office of the Pacific Club, there to affix his signature to articles of agreement. Oh, no, indeed! Like that. Mr. O'Brien is a business man. He is also from Missouri and requires ocular demonstration. He brought a trunk with him, containing clean clothes. From this it is to be inferred that he is telling the truth when he says that he intends to remain in this section for at least a week.

Philadelphia Jack is a wonder when it comes to talking without saying anything. He can pour out his warm salve until the thermometer breaks through the roof, and when the heat has subsided it will be found that he has not said anything after all.

Mr. O'Brien talked, and talked. Only once did he drop the mask and come down to business. This was in answer to the plain blank question. There was no Piccadilly drawl to his talk then, and the words came out in a bunch, the business man was talking business at last.

"I am here to look the ground over," said he, "if I like this offer I will certainly accept it. If Mr. Burns wishes to make that side bet I will accommodate him, though I will not insist upon that part of it. I am ready at all times to fight any man in the business, provided, as I said before, the terms are satisfactory." Oh, no, indeed! Like that. Mr. O'Brien is a business man. He is also from Missouri and requires ocular demonstration. He brought a trunk with him, containing clean clothes. From this it is to be inferred that he is telling the truth when he says that he intends to remain in this section for at least a week.

M'GOVERN SAW CHELSEA FIGHT

Terry McGovern, the former featherweight champ, was one of the spectators at the Herrera-Goodman fight at Chelsea last night. "Mac" just came to town purposely to see the bout, and he was looking in fine condition. He is down to the real healthy line, and he said that Monday he got on the scales and weighed 138 pounds stripped.

McGovern has just been matched to fight Young Corbett, who knocked him out in Philadelphia on October 5.

Terry says that he would like to get matched with Britt, but says that as the Californian has cold feet, and puts up the cry because that he won't fight because not a suitable enough purse has been offered yet.

It's Woman's Own Fault If She Doesn't Succeed in Business

By Eleanor Ames

WOMAN is not a business success.

At least that is the decision reached by many prominent business men in various large cities, and some employers have gone so far as to refuse to employ any more women.

Although this decision has not yet become sufficiently widespread to threaten the independence of the working woman as a class, it is a straw showing the direction of the wind, and is of enough importance to make the wise woman sit up and take notice.

It may be but a natural reaction which was bound to come as a result of the wholesale feminine advance into business which has marked the history of the past quarter of a century.

And again it may be that these hard-headed, unsentimental business men are right and that woman is not proving a lasting business success.

If such is the case, what is the reason?

I believe that the average business woman, considering the rank and file, is the mental equal of the average business man. She is often his superior in point of conscience and trustworthiness.

But she does not get ahead as fast and she does not receive as much money.

The cases of business women who have made startling successes are surprisingly few in comparison with the vast army of workers.

For many years I have come in close contact with working women, and if they are not successes, I think the reasons why they fail are not hard to find.

Women as a mass are not enough in earnest regarding their work to build any permanent success.

Why does the average woman go into business? From necessity.

She uses her position as a tide-over until some man shall offer her his name and home, and then she thankfully shakes responsibility off her pretty shoulders and gives up business life with a sigh of relief.

Half-Heartedness

I AM not disputing the righteousness of her relief, but just so long as a woman works with the mental attitude of doing it because she has to and being glad when she won't have to, she will never give the best of herself to her work.

Only the other day a pretty and clever young teacher said to me:

"You don't know how I dread this idea of going into that schoolhouse and teaching those children for another year.

"But, thank goodness, it's the last year I'll have to, for another Autumn will see me married and through with that work for good. The only thing that makes this year endurable is the thought that the money will make my trousseau what I want it to be."

Honestly, how much real good do you think that teacher will do this year, when above her daily work in the schoolroom is the constant thought of escape?

It was the same idea which dominated the mind of a young nurse who has this past year had several very important cases, and whose name is already mentioned in tones of admiration by brilliant medical men.

"Interesting work?" she repeated when some one spoke of her calling. "It's just so interesting that I thank my lucky stars I'm going to get out of it. I'm going to be married in the Spring, and I'll never see the inside of a sick room or hear the word 'patient' after that if I can help it."

"It's all very well to talk about its being interesting work, but I don't know who would want to be a nurse, except for having to do something, and I don't know of anything that pays any better."

A woman may be in her place of business promptly this after day. She may work faithfully as to hours, but just so long as she is working in the spirit of patient resignation until release comes, she can never expect to gain great and lasting triumphs.

Marriage Her Right

MARRIAGE is the right of every woman.

She should look forward to it as the fulfilment of her joys, the completion of her existence.

But when she views it as an escape from the work which she is called upon to do, she takes from her vision as a worker and belittles the true meaning of marriage.

Another probable reason for woman being an incomplete business success—if she really is—lies, to my mind, in the fact that she tries to do too much.

She has household cares and sewing and social duties, and a thousand and one other things on her mind besides her business.

The working man does little outside work. The working woman should not try to do more.

It is just as hard for her in business as it is for the man, and she has less physical strength at her command.

Therefore she ought to so order her life that all outside interests and exertions are reduced to a minimum.

And she should bring to her business the cheerful spirit of working not because she has to, but because it is her life and she is determined to make the very most of that life. When the right man comes along and declares that he can fill his own place and hers, too, in the business world, and that her place is in the home, let her accept his views happily, but let that last day's work be just as earnest, just as hearty as though it was a trial sample upon which depended her future.

I don't like to hear it even hinted at that woman isn't a success in anything that she undertakes.

And woman alone has the power to stamp such a hint as false.

PRESERVED PORTER APPLES.

TAKE one pack of porter apples, peel and core, cut in half, and quarters if large. Make a syrup of one cup of water to two cups of sugar, skim till clear; put in a few apples at a time; cook a few minutes. Don't let them break. Put in hot jars, fill to run over with syrup. Seal tight. These are equal to peaches.

PORTER APPLE JELLY.

TAKE the parings, cores and seeds, barely cover with water, cook till soft. Drain in a flannel bag; don't squeeze bag. Take sugar and boil with equal amount of juice till it jells on the spoon. Skim.

I have put these up for years, and they are delicious. That is what my friends say.

SPANISH PICKLES

ONE peck green tomatoes, one dozen onions. Slice, sprinkle with salt and let stand over night and strain off the juice. Allow one pound sugar, one-fourth pound of whole white mustard seed, one ounce ground black pepper, one ounce of ginger and one of cinnamon. Mix dry. Put a layer of tomatoes and onions in a kettle and sprinkle with spice, then tomatoes, and so on until all are used. Cover with vinegar and let boil two hours, after which park in small jars and set in the cellar.

MRS. FRANK WOODHEAD.

SWEET PICKLED PEARS

SELECT small, sound pears, remove the blossom end, stick them with a fork. Allow for each quart of pears one pint cider vinegar and one cup of sugar. Put in a teaspoon of allspice, cinnamon and cloves to boil with the vinegar. Then add the pears and boil, and seal in glass jars while hot.

I hope this will please someone, as I put these up every year, and they are very good.

MRS. C. A. ANDREW.

No. 40 Bristol street, Cambridge.

TOMATO MUSTARD

TO one gallon of peeled ripe tomatoes add one pint of vinegar, boil for four hours, then add four tablespoons salt, one tablespoon pepper, one and one-half tablespoon mustard, one and one-half tablespoon cinnamon, one spud one-half tablespoon allspice, one cup sugar. Let it stand where it will keep hot for one hour after the spices are added.

I heartily commend this recipe as being one which is always good, preferable to ordinary ketchups both in flavor and lasting quality. It is an excellent relish.

Know How to Make Tea and Coffee?

IT is difficult to know what would happen to some people, especially women, if they were deprived of their cup of tea. Properly made it is stimulating and refreshing, but nervousness and insomnia are often attributed to excessive tea drinking, and that is the reason it is so often condemned. Taken in moderation it should do no harm.

Although the British as a nation are considered to be large tea drinkers, they are, of course, far exceeded by the Chinese and Japanese, with whom the Australians and Russians as to quantity, but hardly as regards the quality of their tea. The secret of making it in some parts of that country is puzzling.

At the beginning of the week a pot is hung over the fire, with sufficient water for the day's brew. When this has boiled enough tea is put in to produce a deep coffee-colored fluid, and each day this process is continued until the end of the week without the leaves being removed.

Tea, being an astringent, should not be given to young children, and should never be drunk while eating any kind of shellfish.

The first essential for producing a cup of good tea is boiling water, with which the teapot should first of all be warmed, and then the water poured off before the tea is made. Put in as much tea as experience and a spoonful usually being allowed for each person, and after standing for three minutes the tea is ready for drinking.

Tea should never be left standing on a fire or hot plate, and the teapot should not stand for a long time before it is poured out.

It is not a very difficult matter to make a good cup of tea, but a perfect cup of coffee is rare. The blend of the coffee must first of all be considered, for it is impossible to produce a good beverage from indifferent coffee.

"SHADOWS OF NEW YORK"

Copyright, 1908, by American-Journal Examiner

"NO, I—I can't do that, sor—for private reasons."

An ugly look crossed Marr's face.

"I think you will. I warn you, for your own sake, you'd better be sharp."

Marr put his hand into his pocket, and Parslow's fascinated eyes saw that he was grasping something that looked like a short stick with a loaded knob at each end, which he brushed lightly across his left cheek. Parslow gave a quick cry of terror, that mingled oddly with the faint sounds of the piano in the distant room and the gay talk and tabor voices of his friends.

Jarman, who had not spoken during the interview, sprang forward and seized Marr's arm.

"Nomof that, Farmer!" he cried, quickly, "no violence of that sort! I won't have it, that's outright."

Marr turned on him with a snarl and a gleam of white teeth against the dusky skin.

"You whitelivered fool!" he hissed. "Don't you interfere. I'm going to manage this my way. We can only get what we want by frightening him. And if this treacherous cur won't come back on his pals won't listen to reason, he's got to take the consequences! Don't you interfere."

Marr's head was turned for the moment as he spoke, and with surprising activity Parslow took advantage of it.

He moved swiftly to the writing table, pulled open one of the drawers and clutched desperately at something within. It was a revolver that he always kept there loaded.

Marr turned and saw its gleam of the barrel, and in a passion of fury he sprang forward before Jarman could interfere—struck with his murderous weapon at the white-haired man by the desk. The next moment the old "receiver" was lying on the floor, with hardly a groan, a stiff, huddled-up attitude.

The Diamond!

Jarman rushed forward and bent over the prostrate figure with a white face of horror. Then he suddenly turned and confronted Marr.

"You murderous villain!" he said in a low, intense voice. "I wash my hands of you now, do you hear? You make me sick! I wash my hands of you henceforth. I'm not over-scrupulous, but you make me sick with your devility, your wanton brutal violence!"

"Oh, I'm not frightened of you—don't dare to threaten me, or by heaven you'll run your neck into a noose, as you deserve! Do you think I don't know that it was you who murdered Zingara?" he cried, with passionate, accusing eyes bent on the other man.

Marr recoiled, with an ashy whiteness creeping over his swarthy face.

"No, no!" he said, in a husky whisper. "No, you're wrong, Jarman! I didn't even know Zingara—never saw her! Don't talk in that wild way. It isn't safe. And I never meant to hit this man so hard; I never meant to kill him. I swear I didn't! But he had a revolver—didn't you see he had a revolver? He meant to shoot me—would have shot me if I hadn't got my blow in first."

He laid a hand on the other's arm. Jarman shook it off, as though the touch stung him.

"Pre done with you, Marr, forever. I wash my hands of you!" he cried, with an intense passionateness quivering in his voice. "You make me sick of the life I've led, associating with men like you. I break with you utterly to-night. Curse the diamond! Pve done with you, Marr, forever. I wash my hands of you!" he cried, with an intense passionateness quivering in his voice. "You make me sick of the life I've led, associating with men like you. I break with you utterly to-night. Curse the diamond!"

Jarman strode across to the French window, opened them, and passed quickly through.

"I can't go now without the diamond," he muttered. He murdered to himself, looking with a shudder at the prostrate figure that neither moved nor stirred. "I've stood too much to go away without the diamond. Where are the keys?"

Oiled Again

Marr stole cautiously to the door—he found that was already locked; that was all right. He crossed over to the window and fastened it, drew the curtains close. Then with a shuddering repulsion he bent over the lifeless man and took a bunch of keys from his pocket. His bit of ungovernable passion had died out, leaving him horribly afraid. But he could not go without the diamond.

On an impulse he snatched the brightly colored cover from the round table in one corner of the room and threw it over the huddled form on the floor, which was his hand protruded horribly from under the cloth.

Then Marr walked over to the safe with the keys, all the time keeping his ears strained for the sound of any one approaching the room. He could hear nothing except the burst of noisy laughter from a distant room, where the piano was being played and boisterous voices roared out the chorus of comic songs.

He was desperately afraid, but he would not go without the diamond!

He examined the jangling bunch and picked out the key which he thought was most likely to be that of the safe. He put it in the lock and the key turned.

The door of the safe was clung back. Certainly, he thought, the dead man would have put the diamond here. His eyes searched the interior.

The thing that at the first attracted Marr's attention was a red pill box, standing on a folded sheet of note paper. A pill box—what more likely receptacle for the diamond? Marr's eyes gleamed covetously as he seized it, still on the alert for the sound of footsteps.

He opened the box; then flung it away with an oath. The box was empty. He must look elsewhere.

What was that folded piece of paper on which the box had been standing? He opened it and read the lines pencilled on it, in a feminine hand. As he read a look of blank, utter consternation came over his face.

It was useless to look further: he knew that now.

Some one—a woman—had been before him—had stolen the "Mirror of the Moon!"

CHAPTER CX.

Behind the Curtain

MARR read the lines pencilled on a woman's hand on the sheet of notepaper on which the pill box had stood.

"Dear Mr. Parslow—I am saving you the trouble of going to Amsterdam with the 'Mirror of the Moon,' as I am sure at your age the sea passage would upset you. Am I not considerate? You were a little impatient to me before your friends at dinner to-night, so nothing I forgive you. Though I feel it more hard to forgive your secrecy. It was a mistake on my part, beautiful jewels, you spoke of as 'colonie cordiale.' Could I but have guessed at Apollo Lodge—and that I must leave doubtless me—I would so glad have been to give me lessons. For that is how you will be angry and exhale yourself to lose both your little flirtation and the 'Mirror of the Moon' at the same time, dear friend, you must blame no one but yourself in all. I would have been better for you than your supreme cordiale. My happiness and HORTENSE."

Marr stared blankly at the letter, reread it a dead man whom its malice passed harmlessly by; realizing that it was useless to search further in Arcadia Lodge for the diamond; realizing that his crime had been wasted.

Some one—a woman—had been before him. He tore the mocking letter across and across passionately, as if he must vent his fury, if only on some inanimate object. Then his eyes fell again on the mutilated hand protruded horribly from under the table cover, from beneath which one hand lay stretched in sight with fingers stiffly extended.

It recalled the man to his senses, whispered its note warning that by staying there he was putting his neck into jeopardy. With a little sobbing intake of breath he walked over to the window and pushed it quickly out, softly closing the folding windows behind him.

Once outside he ran.

"What in thunder happened to Parslow?" said Sevenyre. "He's had time to write a dozen letters, I should think. I'm hoarse, it's time he contributed to the festivity of the evening."

Growing Pains" Are Rheumatism

BELIEF in the existence of such things as "growing pains" is capable of doing, and has done, a great deal of mischief. Growth does not cause pains in the limbs.

At the same time, it is quite true that growing children often suffer from pains in their limbs. The pains, however, are not actually caused by growth. They may be the result of the weariness and fatigue that often accompanies overgrowth, particularly when too much physical exercise is taken, or they may be caused by rheumatism.

Now, to be ignorant of this fact, and to set aside a child's complaints of pains in its limbs with, "Oh, never mind; they are only growing pains," may be serious damage, because rheumatism in childhood is very apt to be followed by a special form of heart disease—i. e., inflammation of the valves of the heart.

That is to say, when rheumatism is neglected. If the ailment is properly treated at once this danger may be averted.

To be forearmed is to be forarmed. Now, in the treatment of these rheumatic pains in children, it is necessary to remember that the chief cause of rheumatism is an acid state of the blood.

Exposure to wet and cold will, of course, be likely to cause pains in the limbs—but that lots of people never are exposed to any especial wet or cold, and yet suffer much from rheumatism.

We need to look to the diet to prevent or modify this. Sweets should be limited; they certainly increase acidity. While this attack lasts they must be cut off altogether; and so should meat.

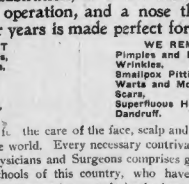
Fish, poultry and game should be substituted for it. Fresh green vegetables are very useful, because they contain potash, which, being an alkali, helps to neutralize the acidity.

Beer should be banished totally and permanently from the dietary of any rheumatic sufferer of any age.

Rheumatism has often been cured simply by leaving off beer.

Woolen underclothing and flannel night garments are absolutely necessary.

Milk, as a beverage, is better than anything else, if it can be digested easily.



WHETHER deformed from birth or disfigured by accident, a humped nose is corrected, as shown in the above illustration, in a few moments. One simple, painless operation, and a nose that has humiliated you for years is made perfect forever.

The Black Pygmy in the Monkey Cage

An Exhibition in Bad Taste, Offensive to Honest Men, and Unworthy of an American City Government

The gentlemen in charge of the New York Zoological Garden have again illustrated the foolishness of allowing semi-official busybodies to manage public affairs.

These men—with good intentions, probably, but without thought and intelligence—have been exhibiting in a cage of monkeys a small human dwarf from Africa.

Their idea, probably, was to inculcate some profound lesson in evolution.

As a matter of fact, the only result achieved has been to hold up to scorn the African race, which deserves at least sympathy and kindness from the whites of this country, after all the brutality it has suffered here.

Instead of teaching the crowd around the monkey cage to take a higher view of humanity and its possibilities, the stupid exhibition of the unfortunate little human being has simply added to our already large supply of race prejudice, of ignorant animosity.

The protest against the brutal exhibition is a just protest, and it should be heeded. It is an outrageous thing that a member, unfortunate and not at all representative of the people of Africa, should be put on exhibition under such shameful conditions.

If the men who have the Zoological Garden in charge really want to do good let them spread ideas of decency, equality and justice among the crowds that they attract.

Let them, with pictures, or statues, or public lectures, give a real idea of some of the splendid men produced by the African race.

Let them tell the crowds about that Afro-American, one of the greatest civil engineers and scientific minds of the country, chosen by the government in its most important work of surveying long ago.

Or let them talk about the Afro-American, Fred Douglass, a real statesman, or of the great French writer, Dumas, and his father—these were men of African blood, and great men.

Let them try to make the crowd of white people understand the great odds against which the African race has fought through the centuries. Let them show how the earth has relied upon these men of African blood to fight the most fierce animals, the most deadly serpents and the killing heat and fevers of the equator.

Let them show to the world how much of our knowledge, how many of our religious conceptions we owe to the African people. Let them try to make men better by filling them with admiration for their fellow-creatures, even when different in color or in shape, rather than add to the foolish prejudice of which we have too much.

As for the size and the looks of that poor little black pygmy locked up with the monkeys, his size is not his fault, and IT DOES NOT NECESSARILY MEAN INFERIORITY.

One of the greatest minds that has lived upon the earth was that of Epictetus, whose mind was shut up in a body deformed, dwarfish, in a body that had suffered under slavery, that had been deformed by the cruelty of a brutal master.

Another white man whose body would not have compared any too favorably with that of the poor little man in the monkey cage was the great Pope, author of "The Essay on Man," one of the best writers, one of the most marvelous thinkers and satirists that our race has produced.

It is shameful and disgusting that the misfortune, the physical deficiency, of a human being, created by the same Force that puts us all here and endowed with the same feelings and the same soul, should be locked in a cage with monkeys and be made a public mockery.

It is an absolutely shameful disgrace to every man in any way connected with it, and this newspaper indorses most earnestly the action of clergymen and others of the Afro-American race in protesting so vigorously against it.

Getting Into Training

By Wex Jones

HARVARD, Sept. 19.—Some practice was the rule today. Some confusion was caused at first owing to the coach having a book of President Roosevelt's reformed spelling rules instead of his reformed football rules. The mistake was rectified, however, after Jugins (191) had twisted his jaw over ductyl.

The new rules were supposed to make the game open and more fitted for light men. Smith (57) was the lightest man out, and went to the hospital early in the game after Biff (261) had inadvertently stepped upon him.

JAIL, Sept. 18.—Jail has lost her most prominent candidate for the football team. Spliff (65), the dashing halfback, has gone to become a jockey.

The new rules put a premium on brains as opposed to brawn, but when brains come into collision with brawn the former goes to the operating room.

In a strong breeze to-day, two members of the team, Feather (49) and Downy (27), the lightest guards in the game, were blown off the grounds and have not yet been recovered.

Notes by the Way

PROSPERITY PUDDING is a delicious dish, although somewhat expensive for the ordinary family. Take a large chunk of monopoly, mix, thoroughly with Trust methods, flavor with rebates and incline in a thick paste of tariff. Serve with hard sauce and pieces of dough.

* * *

Die casting is a pleasant occupation for the long Fall evenings. Get a mould representing a double eagle, and cast an alloy. It will give you considerable amusement to pass specimens of your work as twenty-dollar gold pieces, but, as it be against the law, be careful when playing the game.

* * *

Be gentle with burglars. Remember many a burglar has his disposition ruined by hasty language hurled at him in the dark. "Please go away" is a polite form of address that may be used on any occasion.

Seagulls make nice pets, as they mostly stay far out to sea.

* * *

In making coffee do not forget that good results are almost unattainable without the use of more or less coffee. The water may be perfect, but it won't be fully appreciated without the addition of coffee, no matter how it is colored.

* * *

When you step into wet cement, do not wait until it hardens, as then your foot must be amputated and will spoil the appearance of the sidewalk. If not wearing snowshoes, lie down and roll toward the street.

* * *

Overcoats should be worn more in Winter than in Summer. Strangely enough, fashion's decree accords with one's physical feelings in this matter.

* * *

Railroad tickets should not be thrown away until the conductor has seen them.

Little Editorials from the People

TURN ON THE SEARCHLIGHT

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

Lawyer Henry C. Long will, I am sure, be able to convict the officers and attendants of Foxboro Asylum of the charges of cruelty preferred by Mr. Hicks. Every effort will be made to stifle this investigation, but this time they are caught red handed. Should Mr. Long continue his noble work to the remaining State institutions the citizens of this Commonwealth will ask, "Have we returned to barbarism?" It is mystifying that Mr. Long and I are the only two who demand that the searchlight be turned on.

HOW ABOUT THIS, MR. HIBBARD?

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

Can your powerful paper do anything to influence The Powers That Be to have the Roxbury station of the Boston Post Office—I mean the one near the Dudley street terminal—kept open evenings? It is almost an impossibility to buy a postage stamp after 8 o'clock at night. If the office must be closed, can't a stamp window be kept open, say until 11 o'clock, to accommodate hundreds. Almost nightly there are scores of men and women searching for a place to buy a stamp. The storekeepers—and justly too, I think—refuse to keep them, the demand would be so great they say they would have to hire an extra clerk. Can't Uncle Sam afford to keep open a little later. What has Postmaster Hibbard to say?

Dinkelspiel's Story About Uncle Max

By George V. Hobart

Copyright, 1906, by American-Journal-Examiner

HOME, TO-DAY.

Mein Lieber Looey—Ve haf received your letter from Chinchinnati, und ve vas glad dot your healt' vos enchoying itself.

Day behind last Vednesday your Uncle Max has a homecaming on der Kaiser Vilhelm der Grocer from a trip to Chermany.

Uncle Max enchoyed der trip immensefully mit der eggseption of getting through der Custom House, vich made his pulse beat faster den usuality.

Uncle Max told me to der story, und I vill relation it to you, Looey.

Der Stars and Stribes seemed to vave a welcome at Uncle Max as he approached der hospital shores of Fire Island.

"It is goot, so goot, to breathe vunce more der air of liberty!" set Uncle Max, und ten minutes later der Kaiser Vilhelm der Grocer vos at her dock.

'Ach, Himmel! how happy I vas to be again vare Freedom reigns!" set Uncle Max, as he valked proudfully down der gangway plank.

"Valt."

Der speaker was a short-set man mit a thick face und a wide voice.

Uncle Max paled his cheeks.

"Who vas you?"

"I vas a American citizen; leave me pass!" eggsclaimed Uncle Max.

"So vas I," set der man mit der thick face; "und nudding passes me. You hafe been py Europe, haf you not?"

"Did you dink I use der Kaiser Vilhelm der Grocer to come from Coney Island?" set Uncle Max.

Der man laughed loosely.

"Svear!" he set.

"At vun?" set Uncle Max.

"Svear you vas not a smuggler," set der man.

Again Uncle Max paled his face.

"I should kick you for such an insult," set Uncle Max.

"Pitaness before pleasure," set der man; "svear dot you vas not a robber."

"I svear," set Uncle Max; "invardly, cuidvardly, earnestly und pictorially, I svear!"

"Py der memory of Chorge Vashing you svear do you vas not a smugglesome man?"

"I do," set Uncle Max.

"Hold up both hants und svear!"

Uncle Max dit it.

"Close your eyes und svear!"

Uncle Max dit it.

"Mit both hants behind your back und your eyes fixed on der Declaration of Independence, sign dis svorn statement," set der man.

Uncle Max dit it.

"Now dot you haf svorn, I vill go through your trunks to see if you vas a liar!" set der man.

"Surely should you receif vun of my best kicks!" set Uncle Max.

"Formality fairst, fun later," set der man, capseiting der larchest trunk.

"Aha! vot is dis?"

"It is a pair of openvork socks," set Uncle Max.

"Opened in Europe—yes? Bad pitsness! bad pitsness! I begin to suspicion you. Vot is dis?"

"Dot is a pipe vich I bought in Baden-Baden," set Uncle Max. "I vas tooking it to my cousin in Norvich, Conn., for a souvenir."

"I vill help your cousin to stope smoking," set der man, putting der pipe in his pocket. "Aha! vot is dis?"

Uncle Max blushed his face.

"Vot is dis?"

"Dot is my pair of pajimmies!" set Uncle Max.

"Pajimmies?"

"Put dem back, please!" set Uncle Max. "A man's pajimmies is not for der vulgar gaze of der vorld."

"Pajimmies!" set der man.

"My pajimmies!" set Uncle Max.

"Dey look like a Chinaman's Sunday trousers—yes?"

Uncle Max looked into der pittiless faces of der multitude vich was gazing into his trunk, but dey handed him nudding only small bunches of laughter.

"Come," set der man, "vare is der Chink dot goes mit dis vearing apparel?"

"I assurance you dot I vear dose pajimmies myself," set Uncle Max, interrupting a sob in his t'roat.

"You vear dese pajimmies? Ven? Vy? Vare?"

"In der secrecy of my boudoir," set Uncle Max.

"Aha!" set der man, "so you haf some boudoir, too? Bad pitsness, bad pitsness. I haf never heard of a Boudoir Trust, darefore ve do not make such a ding in dis country. My suspiciousness is getting louder. Vot is it in dis boddle?"

"Dot is my cough medicine," set Uncle Max, gifing a sample of der cough.

It may be vine or cream der mint, because your woice sounds nervous."

"I vas nervous because der vorld is stil giggling at my pajimmies," set Uncle Max.

"Back to der pajimmies! Bad pitsness! bad pitsness! I will haf to dig a tunnel through your neckties to see if you should hat a cafe au lait or a cafe chanteuse in der trunk. Ven a man gets nervous it is always vise to vatch him. Open your mouth."

Uncle Max dit it.

"Vat haf you been drinking?"

"A vermose kickisil," set Uncle Max.

"Domestic or imported?"

"Needer; der Captain treated!" set Uncle Max.

"It sounds to me much like foreign spirits," set der man.

"Do you vish to search me further und see?" inkvired Uncle Max.

Den der man vaded into Uncle Max's udder trunks, two-stepped ofer his' neckiychay shirts, valzed through his valstcoats und dit a polka amidst der ruins of his dress suit.

"Vot is der verdict?" set Uncle Max after der battle vas ofer.

"Not guilty, but you might be," set der man, smiling briefly.

As Uncle Max valked ould der Stars und Stribes seemed to bow politefully, und say, "Go and lemon yourself."
